City readies to clean up on Earth Day

By Alan Lopez
STAFF WRITER

EL CERRITO — About 300 residents will pick up trash, dig weeds and plant trees as part of El Cerrito's annual Earth Day celebration, taking place across the city April 20.

Groups will clean and beautify the city's creeks, parks, schools and streets at about 30 to 40 worksites from 8:30 a.m. until noon that Saturday, when participants will be treated to a free barbecue at the Community Center, 7007 Moeser Lane.

Mayor Janet Abelson said the day is a chance for residents to get involved with the city and meet their neighbors.

"It's a feel-good project, is what it is," said Abelson, who will visit the sites and hand out water on Earth Day. "People have fun and see their neighbors — it's an opportunity to see your neighbors."

Maintenance supervisor Bill Driscoll said the beautification efforts are noticeable.

"It (the clean-up effort) seems to get better and bigger every year," Driscoll said.

People will get involved in one of the work sites for a few hours of clean-up in the morning, which could include painting certain areas, picking up trash,

Center brings community into the creative process

EL CERRITO - Four children were sitting at a table, carefully mixing their paints in plastic cups and using and painting brightly colored circles, rectangles and other shapes around watercolor paintings they had done a week earlier.

The children were learning to draw cartoons at the Canyon Trail Art Center, El Cerrito's answer to the community need for city art programs. Opened Oct. 3, the center has had 12 art classes for about 25 children and adults, with plans to add several more in the spring.

While those who run the programs say there is potential for its growth — artists consistently submit their resumes to teach and several new classes will be added this spring — they admit it has been a slow start.

The Sept. 11 terrorist attack kept people home and away from doing art activities, said Lila Banuelos, the coordinator for the center, and only now are they calling the city, asking to get involved.

"I think people are feeling safe again, getting back to their normal activities," said Banuelos.

Bus shelters would require change in law

By Alan Lopez
STAFF WRITER

EL CERRITO — Bus riders on San Pablo Avenue may receive protection from the weather if a plan to build new bus shelters is okayed by the City Council.

AC Transit is looking to build 37 bus shelters up and down San Pablo Avenue, on Moeser Lane, Arlington Boulevard and Barrett Avenue in El Cerrito as part of a district-wide plan. The City Council is all for it, but there's one catch: many of the shelters would contain advertisements, which city law doesn't allow.

In order to allow the signs, the city has to amend its sign ordinance, which says that advertisements and signs are not allowed on the public right-of-way.

The metal bus shelters have been built in seven cities in Alameda County as part of a plan by AC Transit to encourage more people to ride buses in Alameda and Contra Costa Counties. AC Transit wants to extend the bus shelters into Contra Costa County by signing agreements with El Cerrito, Richmond and San Pablo.

AC Transit began to plan the bus shelters about four years ago but at a total cost of $20 million, found that they could only be built if built and maintained by money coming in through advertisements. In El Cerrito alone, the cost to install the bus shelters and upgrade 28 stops along San Pablo Avenue would be $2.3 million.

"The actual big cost is maintenance," said Robert Del Rosario, an associate transportation planner, and a project manager for the bus shelter project.

The bus shelters would be a vast improvement over the current bus stops which are comprised of just a bench and a sign, said Community Development Director Jill Keimach.

"They're in disrepair," Keimach said. "A lot of them are concrete frames and wood seats and some of the wood is splintering."

"All we have are just some very uncomfortable bus benches at some but not all the locations at San Pablo Avenue," added Bruce King, the city's maintenance manager and a member of a technical advisory committee for the AC Transit advisory board.

If approved by the city, most of the bus shelters would be on San Pablo Avenue and about one out of four would have advertisements. In order to get the shelters, the city would have to sign a contract for 10 years with Lamar Outdoor Coroporation, the outdoor ad company AC Transit has partnered with.

Lamar would prohibit advertisements promoting alcoholic beverages, smoking or ads that defame people or groups, or any signs that contain nudity or violence. In addition, it would clean the shelters and remove graffiti.

Though it had reservations, the City Council directed staff to follow up on the proposal and see how the city's sign ordinance can be amended to allow the ads.

Councilwoman Gina Brusatori didn't want the city to get in trouble on the grounds of violating free speech if it rejected a particular advertisement.

"I just don't want to jump on the bandwagon without our eyes open," Brusatori said. "I don't want a situation where we're incurring litigation and additional costs in the name of doing good."

Councilman Mark Friedman said he didn't like the fact that there was so many ads in cities already but thought the shelters were a good idea.

"This is something that needs to happen," added resident Peter Louball. "We need bus shelters and this is a way to pay for it."

Albany wants to get volunteers involved

By Alan Lopez
STAFF WRITER

ALBANY — The city is working to change its volunteer program in order to get more residents involved and help the city function better.

The volunteer program, which should be up and running by the summer, is intended to help the city's departments with various tasks and give residents of all ages a feeling of contributing to their city.

"They'll get out of it a sense of contributing and belonging in the community," said City Administrator Beth Pollard. "I think Albany is uniquely positioned to have a very successful program because it really is a small town ... Also people enjoy doing certain things and being part of an overall effort. They get to meet people, they get to do things they otherwise wouldn't do and get a sense of accomplishment and pride in the city."

Tilden Park carousel is in for a round of repairs

By Alan Lopez
STAFF WRITER

Thousands of families have made a trip to a wooded area east of the Berkeley and Albany hills on Central Park Drive where the Tilden Regional Park carousel has been spinning around for 54 years.

A part of the 2,077 acres of Tilden Park, the carousel has been one of about a dozen unique attractions that generations of residents have grown up with, according to East Bay Regional Park officials.

"It's kind of a traditional attraction at Tilden Regional Park," said Ned MacKay, a public information supervisor for the East Bay Regional Park District. "It has a large following; everybody remembers it from when they were a kid.

"It's got a lot of charm to it, there are very few merry-go-rounds like it around, it's an antique."

The approximately century-old carousel, inducted into the state Registry of Historic Places, is undergoing nearly $200,000 in renovations that will keep it going in circles indefinitely.

The carousel is now in pieces, covered by a green tarp with fliers pasted up informing people the park is shooting for a late-spring reopening date.

"One of the things that needs to be fixed is the mechanism that makes the carousel animals go up and down," said MacKay. "There's some gears that cause that to happen and those gears are shot and those have to be replaced."

The carousel was brought to the park in 1948, after operating in San Bernardino, San Diego and Griffith Park in Los Angeles.

El Cerrito Christmas man Sundar Shadi dies at 101

Arlington Nativity displays captivated the Bay Area

By Martin Snapp
CORRESPONDENT

BERKELEY — This is the news El Cerritans have long been dreading: Sundar Shadi, one of the most beloved figures in the city's history, died on Good Friday at the age of 101. He had spent the last year and a half in a nursing home here.

"He was a very special man," said El Cerrito Mayor Janet Abelson. "He helped create the strong sense of place that we have in our community."

From 1949 until failing eyesight forced him to retire in 1996, he brightened everyone's Christmas with the elaborate Nativity displays he erected on his sprawling hillside yard on the Arlington.

Tourists by the charter busload used to come from as far away as Sacramento and San Jose — more than 70,000 each year, by conservative estimate.

He also created lavish displays at other times of the year, including his annual Halloween display and his Thanksgiving exhibit, complete with a flock of plaster turkeys.

For many people, Mr. Shadi WAS Christmas. He was a real-life Santa Claus who gave his neighbors something more precious than toys — namely, the true spirit of the holiday. The incredible work he went through every year was his gift of love to them.

But he wasn't a Christian himself. His displays were always non-sectarian, as befits a man who grew up knowing the evils of religious intolerance.

Small-business owner honored

SEWALL GLINTERNICK
El Cerrito Chamber Notes

Wil Chun, owner and operator of Mail Boxes Etc. in El Cerrito Plaza, has been named the first "Small Businessman of the Year" by the Chamber.

He earned the honor for his success in business, his work with local business and civic groups and his years as an active leader on the youth sports scene.

Chun and other award-winning small business owners selected by nine other Contra Costa County chambers of commerce will be guests of honor at an awards luncheon May 9 sponsored by the Contra Costa Council's Small Business Task Force as part of the Small Business Administration's national Small Business Week.

Born in San Francisco 60 years ago, Chun served in the U.S. Air Force after graduating from high school. He worked as a journeyman in an auto body and paint shop for seven years, then was an insurance adjuster for 29 years; he retired in 1989.

In July 1989 he and his wife, Vician, Opened a small MBE store in El Cerrito Plaza. Despite the fact their store was the smallest of the company's 30 facilities in the county, the couple's business managed to be among the firm's top five producers.

Chun is now moving his operation from 190 El Cerrito Plaza to greatly expanded and updated quarters at 3020 El Cerrito Plaza, along Fairmount Avenue.

The new store will feature mail and package receiving services, mail box rentals, mail forwarding, air and ground domestic and international shipping, boxing, gift-wrapping and custom packaging.

The new Plaza MBE will print stationery, cards, labels, fliers, menus, brochures, newsletter and programs. It will also offer packing and office supplies, passport photos, notarizing services, fingerprinting and Internet computer access.

Chun is currently president of the El Cerrito Plaza Merchants Association and a member of the El Cerrito Rotary Club and the Chamber of Commerce, where he serves on the board of directors.

Over the years Chun has managed and coached boys' soccer and Little League baseball, and has refereed both boys' and girls' soccer as well as umpiring local and district Little League.

He and his family — there are five sons, one daughter and seven grandchildren — live in Kensington.

El Cerrito Chamber of Commerce President Marge Collins came out swinging this week in a strongly worded statement blasting a prominently displayed San Francisco Chronicle story that called El Cerrito Plaza "dysfunctional and dull."

Writer John King called the shopping center "a stodgy maze" which "lacked pizzazz."

Collins said the March 29 story, which was labeled a commentary, should have run on the paper's Opinion page.

She took issue with King's opinion that the city should have helped finance renovation, that Regency Centers was doing a bad job and that it should have torn down the old Plaza and completely rebuilt it.

"He fails to mention the three long years the Redevelopment Agnecy spent trying to work out a financing plan with a developer favored by the city's 'new urbanists,' — a plan that finally failed because it made no economic sense for our in-debt and cash-strapped Redevelopment Agency," Collins said.

It would have taken Regency Centers much longer to go through the city's permit process had the developer chosen to rebuild completely, Collins said. In addition, the people of El Cerrito were desperate for a decent place to shop and the city badly needed the added sales tax revenue, which the new Plaza is already generating.

"I know for a fact," she said, "that the people of El Cerrito are definitely not offended or unhappy with the way the Plaza looks, are thrilled with the prospect of being able to find the things they need and want right here at home, think

Creek workshop to educate the educators

The Aquatic Outreach Institute, based in Richmond, will sponsor "Kids in Creeks" workshop from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. April 27 and May 4. The two-day program is designed to educate teachers of grades kindergarten through 12 about water pollution. It also encourages them to get their students involved in creek restoration and pollution prevention projects.Participating teachers will learn about creeks and watersheds and how to incorporate a variety of ecology-related activities into their curriculum, such as water quality monitoring, identifying native California plants and sampling for aquatic insects.Sessions will be at Baxter Creek and at the UC Berkeley Richmond Field Station.The program is funded by the Contra Costa Clean Water Program and the cities of Richmond, San Pablo and Orinda.After completing the two-day workshop, participants may qualify for grant funds of as much as $2,000 to carry out their own creek-related projects.Preregistration is required. The cost of the workshop is $25. Academic credit is available through Cal State Hayward.Download a registration form at www.aoinstitute.org, or call Scott Weintraub at the Aquatic Outreach Institute at 510-231-5655.

Workshop set on 'green remodeling'

Learn how to lower your utility bills and use building materials that are healthier for your family and the environment at a free green building workshop with architect Greg VanMechelen of VanMechelen Architects from 7-8 p.m. on Thursday, April 18 at the Building Education Center, 812 Page St., Berkeley

Each attendee will receive a free copy of Residential Green Building Guidelines - a comprehensive overview on how to remodel homes in an environmentally sound manner. The guidelines, designed for professional contractors and homeowners, offer practical and cost-effective suggestions on ways to create healthier and more durable homes, reduce maintenance and operating costs, minimize construction-related waste and support local suppliers of environmentally-sound building materials.

Attendees can also visit the Resource-full Showcase, a 28-foot trailer made from over 50 recycled-content, non-toxic, recyclable and re-used building materials.

The Resource-full Showcase and Residential Green Building Guidelines are sponsored by the Alameda County Waste Management Authority and Recycling Board to reduce the amount of materials going to landfill and help assure a sustainable environmental future.

Transit smart card test needs more volunteers

A regional transit agency has opened the door for as many as 2,000 to 3,000 additional volunteers for its pilot program of a Bay Area transit debit card.

The TransLink smart card allows transit riders to use one card for access to BART, AC Transit, Caltrain, Golden Gate Transit, San Francisco Muni and Santa Clara Valley Transportation Authority buses and trains.

The card has an embedded computer chip that automatically deducts fares from a pre-paid account.

The Metropolitan Transportation Commission mailed the test cards to 4,300 volunteers in late January. For the second group of volunteers, the commission seeks commuters who would be likely to use the TransLink card for at least two round trips a week.

Bay Area residents who wish to sign up for the program can call TransLink customer service at 877-878-8883 or send an e-mail to custserv@translink.org. A complete list of TransLink-equipped routes and stations is on the agency's Web site at www.translink.org.

El Cerrito nonjuried art show is open to all

By Mary Reiley
STAFF WRITER

Budding artists, as well as those more accomplished, may find this spring's 26th annual art show of the El Cerrito Art Association the perfect place to exhibit their talent.

"Beginners can see how their work compares to other people's," said El Cerrito watercolorist Barbara Brendlinger, one of the association's founders.

About 200 pieces are expected to be entered in eight categories for the nonjuried show, to be held April 26-28 at the El Cerrito Community Center. These include oils and acrylics; watercolor; collage, graphics, pastel and mixed media; sculpture; black-and-white photography; color photography; computer-generated art, all mediums; and Asian-style art, all media.

A painter for almost 30 years, Brendlinger started her study of art doing oils and acrylics, but soon switched to watercolor.

"I like the translucence of the paint when it's put on the paper, the wonderful clarity you can get," she said. "I find I can't accomplish this with oils or acrylics."

Besides, she added, "it's easier to capture the light with watercolor." Her best time to paint is early morning or when her 2½-year-old grandson, whom she watches several days a week, takes a nap.

Brendlinger and Regine Pressler, also of El Cerrito, started the art association in 1976, with the help of the city. The El Cerrito Women's Club had held art shows for three years prior to that, Brendlinger said, and formation of the group has given members a chance to learn from each other and guest artists at monthly meetings.

Open to professional and amateur artists, the show is nonjuried, meaning people at all levels of ability may participate.

Art association members may enter as many as three works for each category, and nonmembers may enter two per category.

For each artwork entered, there is a fee of $5 for members and $10 for nonmembers. Annual dues are $25 for an individual, $30 for a family, plus a $5 initiation fee.

The deadline for applications is April 8. Works must be prepared according to the rules and delivered to the community center no later than 11 a.m. April 26.

Prizes include $50 for first place in each category and ribbons for second and third places. Special awards include $50 each for the art association past presidents' and memorial awards, the El Cerrito Chamber of Commerce award and a prize from the Women's Club of El Cerrito. Ribbons will be given for the El Cerrito mayor's and the Community Services awards.

Artists 18 and older may enter the exhibit. For complete rules and an entry and membership application form, call 510-559-8640. The art show will open with a champagne reception from 7 to 9 p.m. April 26 at the El Cerrito Community Center, 7007 Moeser Lane.

An awards ceremony will follow at 8 p.m. Admission is free.

The show will continue from noon to 5 p.m. April 27 and noon to 4 p.m. April 28.

Chevron USA and the San Pablo Campus of Doctors Medical Center have renewed their El Cerrito Chamber of Commerce memberships.

Members are being reminded that there is still time to make a donation to help fund this year's April 20 Earth Day observance. Donations may be sent to: Earth Day Celebration, 10890 San Pablo Ave., El Cerrito, CA 94530 — or drop them off at the Community Center, 7007 Moeser Lane.

Hundreds of volunteers will get to work cleaning up creeks, parks, schools and streets starting at 8:30 a.m. April 20 and will be treated to a free barbecue lunch at noon at the Community Center.

Chamber members who want to volunteer should call chairwoman Janet Abelson at 510-525-7709.

The fire department has sent out forms to local businesses for this year's Fire Safety Self-Inspection Program. If the form is not filled out and returned within 30 days, the fire department will assume the company would like the city to make the inspection. The minimum fee is $45. As in past years, the fire department will spot-check about 5 percent of the self-inspected stores to assure fire safety compliance. For more information on the program call 510-215-4450.

Join Us For A Tour About Cremation
Saturday, April 6th, 10-12pm

A remarkable vision was fashioned at the beginning of the 20th century in Oakland at the end of Piedmont Avenue - the California Memorial Columbarium, now known as Chapel of the Chimes. Designed by the gifted Julia Morgan and later expanded under the creative vision of Frank Lloyd Wright protégé Aaron Green, Chapel of the Chimes has been serving families in need for over a century.

Between 1911 and 1965, Lawrence F. Moore managed Chapel of the Chimes and invented the "Moore Cremation Retort," which revolutionalized the funeral industry. Our tour will include a visit to our modern crematory, a historical presentation, and valuable information about cremation procedures.

Space is limited for these docent-guided tours. Reservations are highly recommended. Please phone to let us know if you will be coming.

Bright spirits missed

She was the beloved honorary grandmother to a nation. He was the beloved spirit of Christmas to people well beyond his own neighborhood.

She bravely remained in London when the bombs fell during World War II, giving her people strength.

He braved religious prejudice, and made a home in El Cerrito where his hillside holiday displays — especially the lavish sculptures depicting the Nativity — gave joy to all who saw them.

And at Christmas, it seemed that the entire Bay Area was a neighbor of this gentle Sikh man.

Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother and Sundar Shadi both died over the weekend. At the age of 101, both had been born subjects of the British crown during an empire's glory days.

She became Queen herself and lived out life on the public stage. He moved from India to America and lived quietly, except when his lavish and beautiful Christmas scenes or colorful carpets of summer flowers lured crowds to his home.

It's tempting to want to draw some connection between the two. And there is one. But it's not an accident of birth place or time.

The similarity is much simpler and more human. They made people smile. And those of us left behind will sorely miss them.

Since Sundar Shadi's retirement in 1996, the El Cerrito Soroptimists Club has been working to preserve what's left of his sculptures, including doves, sheep, angels, shepherds, cows, donkeys, dogs and camels. The goal is to restore them and find a permanent spot where they can be displayed every Christmas. What's needed: storage space, volunteers and money. For information on how to help, call 510-235-1315.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Past and future

I support creating an arts center, gallery and cinema on the Cerrito Theater site.

I've lived in El Cerrito, at various times, for 34 years since 1946. My wife and I, and many family members attended local schools and universities. My wife's grandmother lived in a house that stood where the present Plaza BART station is, as did the family's building materials business.

My dear neighbors owned and operated the It Club, and their Grandpa Tony operated a produce market on San Pablo Avenue (unpaved road then). The name of the town was once "Rust" — named after the grandfather of one of my El Cerrito High teachers.

There was a dog track and wagering (before the Motor Movies), shell mounds and large eucalyptus and bay trees. I remember going to matinees at the Cerrito Theater (I also used to occasionally sneak into the El Cerrito Motor Movie on cool Friday nights with friends and huddle in the front row). My neighbors and I observed the arson blaze of the old Castro Adobe before the El Cerrito Plaza was built.

My son and daughter have each purchased homes here. They commute to work by BART and the bus. We love living in El Cerrito, but it doesn't now provide enough cultural opportunities or points of interest.

We support measures making the city a more vibrant and interesting community, and a pleasant and vital place to live, visit and do business. The theater's one such opportunity.

I support encouraging community arts, family businesses, small neighborhood-oriented commercial services, pedestrian and bicycle friendly alternatives, and mass transit. I don't support a future of strip malls and auto-oriented businesses.

I urge the city to acquire this property and take steps to preserve and restore this excellent opportunity.

Good for the city

A city is only as good as its cultural life.

El Cerrito is home to numerous artists, as well as countless people who value a rich and textured existence that is about more than the bottom line. Yet, this is only evident in little pockets along San Pablo Avenue.

Tiny rays of light, such as Down Home Records, El Cerrito Natural Foods, and Music Works, reveal the real El Cerrito. These businesses attract people from other towns, to El Cerrito and also offer a genuine service to the local community.

Just as Oakland did for Yoshi's, the city should fund the restoration of the Cerrito Theater, which could then be operated by the owners of Oakland's Parkway Theater. Think about it. What does San Pablo Avenue (and El Cerrito) need more: a mattress discounter or a cozy local theater where community members can take part in the age-old tradition of coming together in the public square to be entertained.

The idea of strolling to my local mattress store does not appeal to me. However, the idea of a leisurely walk from Fatapple's to the theater sounds like the perfect date.

Restore the theater. It's good for the community and good for business.

Carla Smith-Zilber
Albany

Please clarify

As a long time (since 1956) resident of El Cerrito, I remember when the building was still a movie house. I saw the movie, "Exodus," there.

Yes, by all means, restore it if at all possible but please, not to play "action" type films there. I rarely go to movies (the "action" movies effectively got me out of the habit) but when I do, it's the landmark one in Albany, the one on Solano Avenue near San Pablo Avenue. I like their programs.

As for what the community can do — in terms of what? Finances, planning, what? That needs to be clarified.

Recollections

Thank you Lori Dair, and your group, for trying to save the historic Cerrito Theater. Every day that I drive by the theater, I get a recollection of those days gone by.

I remember when my brother was helping the manager with the seats and getting ready for the grand opening in 1937. I was selling eggs to our neighbors for 25 cents a dozen so I could go to the Saturday matinees there.

I remember seeing John Wayne, Buster Crabbe, Gene Autry, Tom Mix, Shirley Temple, Clark Gable, and Claudette Colbert in movies such as, "It Happened One Night," "Gone with the Wind" and "The Grapes of Wrath."

On Thursday nights they had drawings for coffee, sugar, sets of dishes or other items. One night, my mother won a pound of coffee; she felt like she'd won $1,000.

My brother and I want to give full support to revitalizing the Cerrito Theater. This will be our 67th year in El Cerrito.

Too many minuses

I, and several of my friends and neighbors, who have lived in El Cerrito for many years and attended the Cerrito Theater, are not among the more than 300 residents wishing to save it. Our reasons follow.

There are already too many theaters in the area and most of them only get good attendance on weekends. In view of that, how can this old remodeled theater survive and pay for itself?

When the Cerrito Theater was in its prime, it was a "second-run" house for the local community. It was convenient during World War II, since there was gas rationing and we could walk to the cinema or go by bus. It was just an ordinary theater, an old Quonset hut. No one gasped, "Oh, how marvelous and gorgeous it is." If you really wanted "class," you'd go to the Oaks — and it is still in business.

The only thing memorable about the Cerrito was that once a week they had prize night, as did many theaters at the time. When the theater closed, very few were upset by its demise.

Even if they had stayed open and remodeled, it likely would have closed simply because of its location and small size. It was not that comfortable and probably costly to operate.

Furthermore, and most importantly, there is no parking area and people rarely walk, especially at night. This will be a problem, no matter who moves into the site.

The city should not involve itself in what should be a private business enterprise.

We are really appalled the city would put up $20,000 to $30,000 so easily to hold the property or even consider buying it for a movie theater or community center, since over the years, they couldn't find money to keep up and remodel the swimming pool and recreational area for year-round use.

Where are the city's values. Let's get started on the pool and its upkeep before lesser needs are considered.

Art deco surprise

I'm writing to express my enthusiastic support for the preservation of the Cerrito Theater. I see it as a double opportunity for building local pride.

Firstly, we have the chance to save, revive and make available to the public such a lovely art deco interior (what a wonderful surprise to find it exists right here in El Cerrito)! Secondly, we can generate some community spirit around the effort.

I also believe our City Council and city staff members should help and support the efforts to restore and run the theater — even if only until it's up and running. This is a rare opportunity to preserve something of unique character in our city.

Let's do it!

Dianne Brenner

The right thing

My wife and I live in Albany and we would love to see the Cerrito Theater restored.

We enjoy the Parkway in Oakland and we would definitely frequent the Cerrito. It would be great to get off BART and go to dinner and a movie at a movie house with some character.

Restoring the theater is the right thing to do.

Tom Traynor

An historical anchor

Thanks for inviting readers' opinions about the opportunity to restore the historical Cerrito Theater.

We know what Gertrude Stein said about Oakland: "There is no there, there." It can feel that way in El Cerrito — strip malls, mismatched new construction, old neighborhood trees gone, no waterfront, not much sense of history. To recoup the theater as a historical anchor and congenial public place could give the neighborhood a heart.

The newly restored bear fountain in Arlington Circle, done to old drawings, is an example of a successful local rehabilitation project. How about contacting those folks to learn how they solicited artists' contributions and community funds?

Ann Jauregui

Save Cerrito Theater

The historic Cerrito Theater, with its incredible art deco murals and interior, is one of El Cerrito's hidden treasures. For 40 years, Harry Kiefer stored furniture in this vintage San Pablo Avenue theater.

The new property owner wants to lease the space to a new tenant immediately. Very promising negotiations with the owners of Oakland's Parkway Theater recently stalled. But we believe there is still a chance to bring this 1937 theater back to life.

We have to act quickly, or the opportunity will slip away and this unique artistic and historic treasure may soon become a discount mattress store. Help us convince the property owner and the City Council that this theater is worth saving.

Rare opportunity

As a lifelong resident of El Cerrito (graduate of El Monte Elementary School!), I urge the city to acquire the Cerrito Theater or at least develop it, in partnership with a private party, and preserve the site as a community resource.

This is a rare opportunity to grace and distinguish our community, already blessed with beautiful Bay views and excellent schools. For too long, our city languished in the squalor of the underdeveloped Plaza. Now, with the economic momentum of the newly redeveloped Plaza, we should keep the ball rolling by preserving a cultural and historic gem for generations to come.

Joni Hiramoto
El Cerrito

Precious opportunity

What a precious opportunity. In an age filled with fiber optics and plinking e-mails, rarely are we offered the chance to freeze progress and restore a piece of the past.

I am 34 years old and was born and raised in the El Cerrito area. Having moved away while attending college, I returned two years ago with my wife and newborn son. After a 10-month remodel, we moved into the home in which I was born to raise our son. As soon as he was old enough, I rushed him down to The Bootery at the Plaza for his first pair of shoes. I was determined to maintain that family tradition. It was a good thing I did.

I believe what makes change painful is our inability to control it in most cases. The Cerrito Theater not only offers our community a chance to restore and experience a piece of the past but also the opportunity to establish new family traditions. Having managed the Piedmont Theater in Oakland for several years, I grew to appreciate the enchantment of a good old-fashioned movie house, as well as the radiant smiles of families as they left.

The Cerrito Theater awaits, with open arms, to embrace current and future generations of our community. Let's not waste this precious opportunity.

Why? Because they were holy men, not eccentrics

MARTIN SNAPP
Snapp Shots

Why did they do it?

That's what people have been asking me since Sundar Shadi died last Friday at the age of 101, coming on the heels of Joseph Charles' death two weeks earlier.

Why did Mr. Charles get up every morning and wave to the traffic passing by his house in Berkeley? And why did Mr. Shadi break his back every year to prepare those magical Christmas displays outside his house in El Cerrito?

I think I know the answer. They did it as a gesture of divine love. Like Gandhi, St. Francis and Martin Luther King, Jr., they read the Biblical admonition to "Love thy neighbor as thyself" and took it to heart.

Some people called them eccentric, but that couldn't be more wrong. An eccentric is someone who wears odd costumes or collects big balls of string. Mr. Charles and Mr. Shadi weren't eccentrics; they were holy men.

If you truly want to love your neighbor as yourself, what better place to start than by wishing him or her a good day – and really meaning it, from the bottom of your heart? That's what Mr. Charles did.

As for Mr. Shadi's Christmas displays, he wasn't even a Christian. But he knew his neighbors were, so he created the displays to wish them well in a language they could understand. As Louis Armstrong sang: "I see folks shaking hands, saying, 'How do you do?'/What they're really saying is 'I love you.'/And I think to myself, 'What a wonderful world!'"

And a fond farewell to the Queen Mum, who died the day after Mr. Shadi, also at the age of 101.

She inspired affection in her servants, who were almost as old as she was. They couldn't bear to leave her, and she couldn't bear to fire them; so most of them lingered on well past retirement age.

Another thing about her servants is that most of them were gay — a fact that bothered her not at all.

Once, when they were late bringing her nightly gin-and-tonic, she called down to the servants' quarters and said, "I don't know what you old queens are doing down there, but this old queen is dying for a drink!"

Speaking of old people, I happened to watch "The ABC News With Peter Jennings" one night last week. And the entire broadcast was sponsored by Viagra!

Could there be more convincing proof that young people aren't watching the news any more?

Just in case it was a fluke, the next night I watched Dan Rather on CBS. And his whole broadcast was sponsored by Advil!

I didn't watch Tom Brokaw on NBC the night after that, so I don't know who sponsored his show. But I'd bet anything that it wasn't Clearasil.

Here's some good news: 77-year-old Carmen Cozza, the former Yale football coach, is recovering nicely from his recent heart attack.

I was an undergrad at Yale when he was hired in 1964. And I well remember the grumbling among the Old Blues, as the alumni were called, because he was Italian. He was the first coach who — horrors! — wasn't a WASP. It was a sacrilege that would wilt the ivy right off the walls.

The irony is that he not only became the winningest coach in Yale history, he became the living embodiment of everything Yale holds most dear.

It happened, paradoxically, at the worst moment in his career: the infamous 1968 Game. (By "Game," I mean, of course, the Harvard-Yale game, but nobody at Yale or Harvard ever calls it that. It's simply "The Game.")

Both teams went into that game undefeated and untied. But the Yale squad was something special: the best team in school history. Two of its players were extraordinary: quarterback Brian Dowling (the model for B.D. in "Doonesbury," which started out as a strip in the Yale Daily News) and running back Calvin Hill, who went on to star for the Dallas Cowboys (but is better known today as the father of basketball star Grant Hill).

Yale jumped out to a 22-point lead. And with only a minute or so to go, it was still leading by 16 and driving on the Harvard goal again.

Then the unbelievable happened: a fumble, a Harvard recovery, a quick touchdown, a two-point conversion, an onside kick, another touchdown and — with no time remaining on the clock — Harvard scored another two-point conversion to end the game in a 29-29 tie.

Pandemonium on the Harvard side. Gloom on the Yale side. The next day, the Harvard Crimson ran this now-legendary headline: "Harvard Defeats Yale, 29-29."

In Cambridge, it's known as The Greatest Victory in Harvard History. In New Haven, it's known as The Worst Defeat in Yale History.

The Old Blues were not pleased. One sent Cozza a telegram that read, "The next train out of New Haven leaves at 5:05 p.m. Be under it."

But gradually, word leaked out about what happened on the Yale bench as they watched the nightmare unfolding. Dowling and Hill begged Cozza to put them in on defense; as the best athletes on the team, they were the only hope of stopping the Harvard drive.

To his undying glory, Cozza refused. "How could I do that to the boys who have been practicing and playing defense all year?" he explained.

Yale "lost" the game, but it gained something more precious: a coach who understood that some things are more important than winning. He may not have been Old Blue, but he was True Blue.

And that leads me to the final order of business, which is to wish all you high school seniors good luck today. As if I needed to tell you, it's the day the letters will appear in your mailbox, telling you if you've been accepted by the college of your choice.

You won't have to open the envelope to find out. If it's thick, you're in. If it's thin, you're out.

I'll have my fingers crossed today, too. For the last 15 years, I've been interviewing local students on Yale's behalf. The Admissions Committee uses alumni like me to interview applicants who can't make it back to New Haven. (The Committee lays down only two rules: Never promise anything, and never say anything bad about Harvard.)

Let's get it done

I think El Cerrito should do whatever it takes to save the Cerrito Theater.

With proper leadership, this project could be the centerpiece for renewed economic development along San Pablo Avenue and create a "there," here in El Cerrito.

The city should provide the leadership and backing needed to get historic designation and needed grants to induce private developers and businesses to restore and run the theater.

We have heard a lot of talk about renewing the Redevelopment Agency with an economic development focus.

The Cerrito Theater is a milestone project, a once in a decade opportunity, for this recently reactivated agency to demonstrate what this could mean to our community.

Let's all pull together to get it done.

Al Miller
El Cerrito

Get answers first!

Let's see if I have this straight. Advocates for restoring the Cerrito Theater are after their fellow residents to use tax moneys to fund it. That is, whether those fellow citizens approve of the proposal or not.

To those who favor doing this, I suggest they look at the city budget and pay attention to the long list of capital needs — mainly unfunded.

Since there is only so much money that can be devoted, if some of it is spent on the theater, something else has to be set aside or delayed.

That means there is an opportunity cost as well as the direct cost of doing the theater. This is true, as well, if the restoration is done with Redevelopment Agency funds. It's all from taxes.

There have been paeans of praise for the predicted value of having the theater again. If that's true, why isn't there private funding for such a valuable project? Wasn't the theater a private venture in the beginning? Why did the theater close? What has been the success of small, single-screen theaters in this time of huge multi- screen installations? Why did the Oakland theater folks decide against doing it on their own?

Unless satisfactory answers to such questions are in hand, it would seem not proper for the city to consider being involved with the funding.

George Amberg
El Cerrito

Supports efforts

Recently, I have read, with great interest, that an effort is being made to restore the Cerrito Theater.

In my view, this is a most worthy effort and should be pursued at this time. I believe El Cerrito is a marvelous place to live. However, it also has an urban feel due to lack of cultural sites.

Now that the theater has become a focal point for restoration, I would suggest that this is an excellent starting point to remedy the city's lack of cultural centers.

It seems a restored cinema could be used as a theater and also as a conference center or live-theater venue.

Clearly, I support present efforts to explore the feasibility of this and, hopefully, the ultimate restoration of this El Cerrito landmark.

Edward Breuer
El Cerrito

Strongly supportive

As Albany residents within walking distance of Central and San Pablo avenues, we strongly support restoration by El Cerrito of the old Cerrito Theater to a functioning movie house.

For the city, such a theater would be a boon to the Fairmount/Plaza redevelopment, drawing people who otherwise might not visit the new Plaza businesses, cafes and restaurants. The added bonus of having the theater so close to BART will only increase the number of people who will frequent the movie theater and, thus, the Fairmount/Plaza area.

The cost of refurbishing the theater should not be measured simply in immediate outlay of dollars and cents.

We believe the draw of the theater will increase dollars spent in El Cerrito for years to come — not only paying off any immediate outlay but also increasing the visibility of El Cerrito to the rest of the Bay Area.

Oakland's Parkway is a great concept and a fun place to see movies. We would love to have such a theater minutes from our home.

Additionally, El Cerrito has a chance to preserve a piece of its history, one of the few remaining historic structures in the city. That alone is reason enough to move forward with a plan to save this theater.

We hope that the city of El Cerrito seizes upon this opportunity to make a change to the face and spirit of El Cerrito that will be felt for generations to come.

Jenny Craik
John Lacy
Albany

Miracle 'discovery'

I would like to add my voice to the rising chorus of voices in support of preserving the Cerrito Theater.

To "discover" an art deco theater in our town is a bit of a miracle. I hope it will not require another miracle to take advantage of this opportunity to put El Cerrito "on the map" in people's minds.

Those of us who live in El Cerrito know the many advantages our community has to offer. Resurrecting the Cerrito Theater will bring people to our city and help spread the word of what a wonderful place this is.

An increased presence in the East Bay will inevitably lead to more business for El Cerrito merchants, higher property values for homeowners and an enhanced quality of life for all El Cerrito residents.

Reece R. Halpern
El Cerrito

A boon to the city

My wife and I moved to El Cerrito just one month ago. We relocated from Oakland and purchased our first home here.

While living in Oakland for the last four years, we were huge fans and regular customers of the Parkway Theater.

Imagine our surprise and joy to learn that El Cerrito has a similar historic theater in state of disrepair and that the owners of the Parkway might be interested in leasing it!

The Parkway is a phenomenal community-oriented business, enormously popular and fun. It would be an untold boon to the city if we were able to attract them here.

There is growing community support for the preservation of this theater. I believe that with a strong commitment of public funds from the city (and a fund-raising campaign in the private sector), we can raise the money needed to renovate and preserve the theater. And, with luck, we can also reawaken the interest of the Parkway owners.

John W. Keller
El Cerrito

A deserving vision

We are encouraged by the current efforts to restore the Cerrito Theater.

El Cerrito deserves at least a few cultural amenities to distinguish our community from the blur of fast food restaurants and big box stores.

We applaud those who have a vision beyond the current redevelopment we have witnessed here.

Shadi

Mr. Shadi was born in 1900 near Sargodha, India, which is now a part of Pakistan. As a Sikh, he suffered the full brunt of prejudice from both Hindus and Muslims. His father and his older brother were killed in sectarian violence.

He came to America in 1921, settling first in Stockton. Working in the fields picking asparagus, he saved up enough to move to Berkeley and enroll at Cal, where he graduated in 1930 with a master's degree in horticulture, specializing in pomology, the science of growing fruits.

He wanted to teach, but in those days the prejudice against non-citizens was too strong. So he went to work pumping gas. One thing led to another, and he made a small fortune in real estate.

He married Cal professor Dorothy Clarke, one of the nation's foremost experts in Spanish literature. It was she who first suggested the Christmas display.

It quickly became a beloved El Cerrito institution. When Mr. Shadi retired in 1996, former Mayor Jean Siri spoke for many when she said, "I feel a great vacancy. First it was my tradition, then my kids' tradition, and n my grandchildren's tradition

Shadi was a past presider the El Cerrito Historical Soc He was also instrumental in tablishing the city's ann United Nations Day observa

Since Shadi's retiremen 1996, the El Cerrito Soroptom Club has been working to serve what's left of his sculptu including the farm scene and all-important Christmas Nati scene.

The goal is to restore th and find a permanent spot wh they can be displayed e Christmas. Right now, they n three things: storage space, unteers and money. If you help, call 510-235-1315 or s your donations to Soroptomi ternational of El Cerrito, A Shadi Project, P.O. Box 32 Cerrito, CA 94530.

Many times over the ye people asked Mr. Shadi wh went to all that trouble. "E body has a duty to do somet for their fellow beings," he plained. "See, I was enjoyin life, nice wife, nice house children; so I felt I ought t something for the commun planting trees, applying mulch, pruning or other work.

Many groups, such as the El Cerrito Lions Club, the Kiwanis Club, and the Manor Circle and Navalier neighborhoods have adopted specific sites that they work on every year.

This year the city is focusing on fixing up the Ohlone Greenway at the north and south ends of the city.

Some groups will be cleaning sites on different days, such as students, faculty and parents at El Cerrito High School. About 100 residents will be cleaning the school on a different day, to accommodate the junior class prom, held the night before Earth Day.

Residents who haven't signed up can call Abelson, who will help people figure out the best place for them to work. Residents are encouraged to sign up in advance although they can also be directed by checking in at the El Cerrito Community Center the morning of the events. Abelson said she wants people to find a site that means something to them.

"It isn't everybody doing the same thing but rather people picking a project they want to do," said Abelson.

Abelson, along with city staff is coordinating the clean-up work with Joann Steck-Bayet and other volunteers coordinating the barbecue. The barbecue has been paid for by several businesses in El Cerrito and Kensington.

Abelson said she once saw a girl pick up a piece of paper at Harding Elementary School and put it in a garbage can.

"That's how I think of Earth Day in El Cerrito," she said. "It's fixing things as opposed to dropping trash and people doing things they think needs to be done."

For more information about Earth Day events, call 510-525-7709 or e-mail earthday@ci.el-cerrito.ca.us.

Volunteer

Albany has always had volunteers of course, at the city's senior center and for one-day events like the Fourth of July celebration, but it is now trying to organize a cohesive program where residents interested in volunteering can easily find a place to do it.

"We've definitely had volunteers here but it's just having an actual program that we don't have right now," said senior center coordinator Rachel Orkand, who is putting the program together.

In coordinating the program, Orkand has been busy finding out how other cities plan their volunteer programs, as well as which Albany departments need volunteers. In addition, she has to create volunteer applications for residents to fill out and figure out how to keep track of the number of hours residents volunteer.

Orkand envisions people volunteering in various city departments, including the city's teen, childcare and senior centers, and expects to have the program up and running by July or August.

"Each department has to figure out what their needs are and how volunteers can fill those needs," she said.

Pollard brought the idea of the volunteer program to Albany after seeing how well it did when she worked in San Anselmo in Marin County and credited the City Council for backing the idea. In May, the council will direct city staff on how to move forward with the program.

"I'm personally excited about this program because Albany is in a great position to have residents be a bigger part of city government by contributing their time and energy and talents," Pollard said. "And in turn they get a sense of accomplishment and being more connected with their community."

SANTA PEEKS OUT from behind bars at the merry-go-round in Tilden Park. The ride is currently disassembled and being renovated, to be open for use later this year.

Carousel

It was first built by the Herschell-Spillman Company in New York, with the animals handcarved in Europe, according to MacKay.

Opened in 1936, Tilden Regional Park has amassed an assortment of attractions, including a mini farm, pony rides, a miniature working train, a botanical garden, picnic and camping facilities, horse-riding trails and more. The carousel is a vital part of that.

"It's a public service and its a great historical facility," said Maryanne Canaparo, revenue manager for the East Bay Regional Park District. "We won't even want to think of moving it anywhere. It's been there 40 years and it's part of the establishment of Tilden, just like the steam train is. It's partially what puts Tilden on the map."

Some $197,000 is going to repair the structure, money allocated from Proposition 12, a state bond measure passed by voters in 2000. The East Bay Regional Parks is looking for funding, including grants and donations, that will complete the restoration of the carousel, including the floor and the antique organ.

> "We're all dying for it to be put back together. It's kind of a missing link at the park right now."
> — Maryanne Canaparo

Part of the Measure A money will go to renovating the carousel snack bar, with workers from the East Bay Regional Park District installing new sinks, new electrical systems and new sewer and water lines and bringing it up to code.

"We're all dying for it to be put back together," said Canaparo. "It's kind of a missing link at the park right now."

Center

The classes so far are an eclectic mix of offerings.

Art classes for children include sculpture/mixed media, painting, clay, and puppetry; for adults it includes painting, glass fusing, jewelry making, and cartooning; and for seniors, watercolor, acrylic paint and collage-making. Several new classes will be added in the spring.

The center at 6757 Gatto St. was built as a city park clubhouse. It was later used as part of the city's daycare program but was closed down in the late '90s due to seismic concerns. Voters passed Measure A in 2000, giving the city funds to retrofit the building.

The main room is about the size of about two large classrooms, and is stocked with about half a dozen spiffy new drawing boards and tall chairs, as well as small desks and chairs for children. There's an office to the side as well as a small photography dark room, a kiln and a potter's wheel.

Banuelos was busy with other jobs in the city's recreation department and was drafted into managing the center.

She has been working with art and children almost her entire life and still teaches in schools.

"Give me scissors and paper and I can turn it into something," she said.

The people taking the classes seem to enjoy it. Lisa di Prima, who has about 25 years of teaching experience, was teaching a fine-art cartooning class to children last Monday.

Usually the children are busy making their own cartoon characters and comic strip panels that day, she said, they wanted to paint a border around their watercolor illustrations.

With the radio playing classical music in the background, the kids went at it, sometimes distracted by each other but mostly immersed in the act of creating.

Though it's a cartooning class, di Prima stressed that it's "fine art" cartooning, and not just creating "silly little cartoons." The children have created sculptures and have learned little cartooning techniques, like making sure the characters' facial expressions match their body language.

"They do their own little characters, their own heroes and make up their own villains, work on expressions," said di Prima, who has been teaching art for about 25 years.

The youngsters themselves — three third-graders and a fourth grader — said they like coming to cartooning and like having a fun thing to do after school.

"I get to do a lot of animals and stuff like that and I like drawing," said Madera Elementary School third-grader Gabe Weisser, explaining his interest in for the class. "I draw at home and I used to draw all over the house with chalk."

Bansuela hopes more children like Jason, as well as adults, will take advantage of the program.

"We're trying to bring [art] in the community," she said. "We're trying to have [it] reach out and experience [it] in different forms."

"I helped start Wired Magazine.
But if I were you, I'd start right here."

There's a misperception about jobs pertaining to the Internet right now. Sure, the ill-conceived business schemes are gone, but the web has never stopped growing. People who know design and can put those skills to use in the digital world are always going to be in demand.

That's why I'm such a fan of Ex'pression Center. Their Digital Graphic Design program integrates design fundamentals with the latest technology. You get marketable skills, and your Bachelors Degree in just 14 months. Other colleges haven't caught on yet, but this is really revolutionary.

A crew club 'fit' for 21st century

Now in it's 28th year the Oakland Strokes boast 160 rowers

By Pete Elman
CORRESPONDENT

It was an unseasonably warm Saturday morning in early March and the water was calm and glassy on the Oakland Estuary as the men's "eights" brought their longboat back to the home dock after a strenuous practice session.

Home in this case is the Jack London Aquatic Center, headquarters of the Oakland Strokes, a 160-strong club of teenage boys and girls who are making big waves on the rowing scene, locally and nationally.

The Strokes chairman is Piedmont resident Will King, an avid supporter of rowing who says, "If I could, I would do this all day, everyday."

"This club is on the way up — we're trying to take it from an organization of a few passionately involved (people) to everyone giving something," King said, referring to the growing volunteer effort of the parents. About the rowers themselves, he added, "Rowing is a spectator sport for aficionados, but for the participants it tends to attract kids who are able to sustain discipline in the absence of adulation."

In their 28th year of existence, the Strokes have grown from a tiny women's rowing group to a thriving coed organization that is one of the premier clubs in the country. Its teams perennially challenge for, and in some cases, win medals in national meets.

Staffed and coached by current and former collegiate crew athletes, the Strokes take their sport as seriously as any major prep team that competes in an interscholastic conference.

■ The Rowers

Drawing from 38 different East Bay public and private high schools, the Strokes are a physical and athletic bunch. Many of them play other sports such as football, basketball and tennis, but are attracted to rowing because of its uniqueness.

Billy Throckmorton, 17, is a senior at St. Joseph Notre Dame in Alameda, a school whose athletic claim to fame is as the high school alma mater of NBA superstar Jason Kidd. It is clear after talking to Billy that he loves to row.

"I do it because I like the teamwork," Throckmorton said. "It's very consuming."

So consuming, in fact, that he has factored whether a college has a crew program into his application. Billy has applied to UC-Davis and Sacramento State, both known for solid rowing programs.

■ The History

Ed Lickiss, a local electrical contractor and champion rower, founded the Strokes in 1974. Lickiss was chosen for the 1940 Olympics, which were canceled because of the war. He kept up his interest and participation in rowing for the next 20 years, and in 1960 founded the Lake Merritt Rowing Club as a program for high school students.

In 1964 Lickiss founded the National Women's Rowing Association. The Strokes were incorporated in 1974 as a nonprofit organization that would, as stated in its charter, "provide young athletes with excellent physical training and the confidence to succeed in life's most challenging endeavors."

■ The grind

Most don't realize how difficult a sport rowing is. The Strokes' women's varsity coach is Derek Byrnes, a San Francisco native and stockbroker by day who rowed at UC-Santa Barbara. The slender Byrnes explained to an observer what it feels like to be in the boat.

"Sit against a wall with your butt off the ground and your legs at a 90-degree angle — now hold it for a few minutes," Byrnes said. After two minutes one's legs become jelly. Combine that with the repetitious motion of pulling your arms back as hard as you can and one realizes this is no sport for slackers.

"It's like running a mile lifting weights," Byrnes said. When asked what part of the body goes first, he replied without hesitation, "Your head — after a few minutes you're brain is telling you that your body is shutting down, and that's when you have to get to that next (painful) level."

Dan Herbert is the previous chairman of the Strokes who stays in shape by rowing. A former coxswain at the University of Washington, Herbert's children have followed in his footsteps. His son also crewed at UW and his daughter Amanda is currently the women's "novice" coach for the Strokes.

"Rowing is the ultimate team sport," said the high-energy Herbert, whose tanned countenance befits one who spends a lot of time on the water.

The Strokes are part of a Bay Area "league" that also includes teams from Berkeley High, St. Ignatius, Marin Rowing Club, Los Gatos, Pacific Club (SF) and Serra High of San Mateo. Races, or regattas, are held at various locations, including the Oakland Estuary, Lake Merced and Lexington Reservoir in Los Gatos.

The season runs from September to June, roughly mirroring the school year, and is broken up into two parts. The fall season is mainly for conditioning and training, and the races are long — 5,000 meters, more than three miles. Last fall there were four of these "head" races and one "ergathon" held at the boathouse, where rowers test themselves against the rowing machines they work out on.

The spring season is when the serious competition takes place, as the Strokes typically have eight local races and travel to Mission Bay in San Diego for another. The culmination of the season is the U.S. Rowing Southwest Regional Junior Championships, held at Lake Natoma near Sacramento in late May.

■ A team effort

The races in the spring are 2,000-meter "sprints" that test a rower's mental as well as physical toughness. These races usually last about six minutes and leave the participants in a state of exhaustion, their muscles burning and their bodies well into "oxygen debt".

A typical race will feature long (62-foot) boats, each with nine athletes aboard: The coxswain, who barks out the rhythm of the oars, and eight rowers, each with one oar, four per side. This is called "eights". The longboat is the fastest boat on the water, capable of speeds of up to 13 mph. There are also boats with four and two rowers.

The Strokes put in the water an "A" team, a "B" team, a novice team made up of first-time rowers and a lightweight team, restricted to boys under 155 pounds and girls under 130. The meets typically feature two or three races: the "A's", the novices — who make up about half of the Strokes' membership — and the lightweight boat.

■ Practice makes perfect

The Strokes' practice schedule is no picnic. The team gets together Monday through Thursday from 4-6 and Friday morning at the ungodly hour of 5 a.m. When there is not a meet they also work out Saturday mornings from 7 to 9 a.m. The only day of rest is Sunday.

The rower who sits nearest the stern, right behind the coxswain, is called the "stroke", and sets the rhythm and cadence for the crew. The No. 3 through 6 rowers are called the "power seats" or "the engine room" and are usually the ones with the most strength and leverage.

"We have a recruiting director who looks for athletic kids with leverage and strength (and) who love conditioning," King said.

One such teenager is his son Matt, who just turned 16 and is a sophomore at Piedmont High. A 6-foot-3, 175-pound redhead, Matt King spoke after a recent practice.

"(Rowing) is just fun: I get in that boat and focus; it inspires me. My main goal is to make the 2008 Olympics," said King, who occupies the sixth seat on the men's varsity boat.

When asked how his personal goal interacts with the team concept, King explained, "Everyone's out there trying to make the boat the best, but they must do it individually."

■ Winners

The Strokes have racked up an impressive array of local, regional and national medals. Among the many achievements are: First place at the 1997 Newport Regatta (men's varsity); second place at the 1999 June Nationals (men's lightweight); first in the 1999 Head of the Estuary (women's varsity) regatta; and second at the 2001 Southwest Regional Junior Championships (men's varsity).

The girls are doing well, too. Of the 160 members of the Strokes, about 2/3 are girls.

Rowing was originally for men only, and then Ed Lickiss entered the picture and everything changed. The chairman discussed the importance of having crew available to high school girls.

"Two-thirds of our rowers and our board of directors are women," King said. "Our goal is to have an Oakland woman win a medal in the summer Olympics. American rowers did not do well in Sydney (in the 2000 games)."

Kate Bertko is a senior who attends Bishop O'Dowd in Oakland. The Strokes offered her the opportunity to find and pursue something she loves, and rowing has opened up a very big door for her.

"I'll be going to Princeton in the fall," Bertko said. "Their crew

Track & Field

23rd Annual Oakland Invitational Relays, Saturday, April 6, 8:30 a.m. Edwards Stadium, Cal — This meet has grown into the largest invitational track and field meets in the Bay Area, in a stellar setting. Many local athletes, including Berkeley resident Clara Horowitz of Head-Royce, Bridget Duffy, Kamaiya Warren and Solomon Welch of St. Mary's, will compete.

Baseball

■ Berkeley vs. Alameda at College of Alameda, Wednesday, April 10, 3:30 p.m. Coming off their appearance in the Jim Doane Tournament in Novato, the powerful Yellow Jackets take their bats to Alameda for an ACCAL game. The following day, Thursday, it's Berkeley vs. Robert Service (Anchorage) at San Leandro Ball Park. Game time is 7 p.m.

■ St. Mary's at Berean Christian, Monday, April 8, 3:30 p.m. and at Salesian, Wednesday, April 10, 3:30 p.m. Just what the Panthers need — another nonleague game. Pitching-poor St. Mary's will save the best it has, senior Joe Storno, to throw against Salesian, the preseason (and current) leader in the Bay Shore Athletic League. Randy Renn, the Chieftains' ace, may pitch.

Golf

Berkeley in Third Annual John Mantano High School Invitational at Merced Country Club, Monday, April 8, 12:30 p.m.; vs. Pinole Valley at Franklin Canyon GC in Hercules, Tuesday, April 9, 3:30 p.m.; in Sixth Annual San Francisco High School Invitational at Sharpe Park GC in Pacifica, Wednesday, April 10, 12:30 p.m.; and vs. Alameda at Chuck Corica GC, Thursday, April 11, 3:30 p.m.

Boys lacrosse

Berkeley vs. College Prep at Gabe's Field in Berkeley, Wednesday, 4 p.m. A home game for the Cougars, it is the Shoreline Lacrosse League opener for both teams.

Girls Lacrosse

Berkeley at Piedmont, Thursday, 7:45 p.m. A return match against the Highlanders, whom the Yellow Jackets defeated on March 20.

Softball

St. Mary's at Hercules, Wednesday, 1 p.m. and at Salesian, Wednesday, April 10, 3:30 p.m. The Panthers are coming off a tough 3-0 loss to Piedmont on March 26 and a humbling 20-1 loss to Head-Royce on March 27. Now they get Salesian, which won the North Coast Section A title last year. Which St. Mary's team will show up? Come and find out. The first game is a nonleaguer against the new Titans.

Star of the Week

■ Clara Horowitz, Head-Royce track. Took a close second in the 3,000 meters at the Stanford Invitational on Friday. Shannon Rowbury of Sacred Heart Cathedral-San Francisco won the race in 10 minutes, 38 seconds. Horowitz wasn't far behind, finishing in 10:41.

Quote of the Week

"We just didn't come out ready to play today. They're a good team. We didn't get the key hits when we needed them. They did. Mentally, we didn't play a good game."

— Albany baseball coach Jim Giblin, commenting on his team's effort in a 5-1 loss to Benicia on Wednesday in the Alhambra Tournament.

Springtime a time for baseball

MIKE McGREEHAN
Between the Lines

Something positive is going on here. Days are have grown longer, skies have become sunnier. The cold of winter is but a fading bitter memory. Yes, indeed, spring has sprung. It's a season of renewal in nature.

And on baseball diamonds.

Baseball links the generations. It links cultures. It brings people together. It is the national pastime of the United States. And Venezuela, Cuba and the Dominican Republic. It's big in Japan and Korea, too. An official Olympic sport since 1992, baseball is fast becoming an international pastime.

Baseball is a game, but in a way, so much more. Baseball is past, present and future, a window on our culture and other cultures, too.

Baseball is Little Looie, Luis Aparicio, making a pick at shortstop. It's another Venezuelan shortstop, Omar Vizquel, doing the same thing for the Indians these days.

Baseball is about hitting. It's Tony Oliva digging in at the plate. It's A-Rod and I-Rod, the Big Cats — both Johnny Mize and Andres Galarraga. It's McGwire, Bonds, Slammin' Sammy and up-and-coming sluggers the world does not yet know.

Baseball is great pitching. It's Maddux, Glavine and Smoltz. Randy Johnson and Curt Schilling. It's Koufax and Drysdale from the '60s. It's Spahn and Sain and pray for rain from an even earlier era.

Baseball is box scores, statistics, notes, quotes and anecdotes. Bobby Thomson beating the Dodgers in '51. Maz trumping the Yanks nine years later. It's the 'Curse of the Bambino' in Boston and the famous 'Wait'll next year' lament of Chicago Cubs fans.

Baseball is Yogi-isms. It's Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench telling rookie manager Sparky Anderson in 1970, "Sit down, keep your feet under the bench, and we'll make you look smart." Bench, by the way, was MVP that year as the Reds won their first pennant in nine seasons.

But baseball is more than just what happens between the white lines. Perhaps best of all, baseball means meeting fans like yourself.

For me, baseball is sharing Braves anecdotes with Ron Jacobson, husband of Contra Costa weeklies colleague Cathy Jacobson and a guy who's been a fan of the team since the days of Eddie Mathews, Hank Aaron, Joe Adcock, Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette.

Through baseball, we find many folks with roots in other cities. Baseball means talking St. Louis Cardinals history with Piedmont High scorekeeper Pete LaChapelle, who grew up in St. Louis. It's talking Phillies baseball with Philly transplant Harry Gordon, whose son Ian is a catcher for Albany High.

Baseball is Hills Newspaper colleague Bill Kruissink, a former Chicagoan, spinning yarns about the White Sox and Cubs. Baseball is a fun discussion of the Washington Senators — original and expansion — with correspondent Pete Elman. Baseball is Isaiah Alvarado, an Oakland schoolteacher born in Puerto Rico and raised in New York, telling stories of the game in both places.

Still there's more. Baseball means getting together with friends and family. It's my dad taking me to my first game in '65. It's a 1978 trip to Candlestick Park with buddy Greg Giusso and cousin Jim Ratto to see the Giants beat the Padres in extra innings. It's sitting in the Coliseum bleachers on A's Helmet Day with Greg and Jim six years earlier, and coming home with memories of the game and of the poor kid who lost his lunch one row behind us.

Baseball reconnects us with old friends. It's about running into Maria and Jeff Croft at the Alameda World Tournament last August.

Baseball is the teams that played in that tournament. The winning team from Brazil, the teams from Japan and Taiwan and the two teams from Mexico. It is meeting the manager and some of the players from Nettuno, Italy, for instance — and thinking of Julio Bonetti, Marino Pieretti, Hank Biasetti and Reno Bertoia, Italian-born players who made the major leagues.

Baseball is Pacific Coast League stories handed down from your elders. It's the richness of those days brought to life at the annual PCL Historical Society reunion at the Oakland Museum.

Baseball is the 1958 Giants. And the 1968 A's. It's the Giants and the Yankees in the World Series 40 years ago. It's the A's bringing the Bay Area its first World Series championship 30 years ago. Baseball is stories about quirky weather in both those Series. And of guys like Chuck Hiller and Gene Tenace, who each had his moment to shine in those respective Series.

Baseball resurrects childhood memories of being on the playground with your friends — of swinging at pitches well out of the strike zone and butchering the easiest fly balls. And enjoying every minute of it. Just being out in the fresh air is so invigorating.

These days, pickup games seem a thing of the past. And the crack of the wooden bat has given way to the ping of aluminum on playgrounds. But baseball remains a great game, one with a timeless beauty.

Spring has returned. And so has baseball. And the world seems just a little better for it.

was fifth in the nation last year — they have a great program." About her passion, she said, "This is the quintessential team sport — it's a good feeling being in the boat."

Tearing down the glass ceiling is not the only item on King's agenda.

"Our next objective is to break the color barrier. The same way you saw Vonetta Flowers win a medal in bobsled at Salt Lake, there's no reason an African-American rower from Oakland can't accomplish the same success," he said.

■ The coaches

Men's varsity coach Dana Hooper is built like a rower — tall and strong. While attending College Prep in Oakland he joined the Strokes. After that it was on to Cornell. Back in the East Bay after graduating, he works as a structural engineer when he's not coaching.

"Technique is important," Hooper says. "Our strength this year is also our weakness — inexperience. But I anticipate that by the end of the year we'll be near the top."

His assistant, Janine Moreno, is a graduate of the University of North Carolina, where she rowed for the Tar Heels all four years. After college she spent a year in Buenos Aires where she rowed with the Argentine national team. Moreno is the one with the bullhorn during practice, yelling instructions from a motorized launch that runs beside the boat.

When asked how they determine who will be the coxswain, she laughed and said, "(It's) the shortest, smallest one with the loudest voice."

■ The Big Picture

Will King, a Washington, D.C. native who got involved in rowing through his two sons, Matt and older brother Mike, is an enthusiastic and busy leader. He supervises everything from fundraising to scheduling, as well as organizing meets and chairing board meetings. And wor hard to keep the parents volved. His behind-the-scen work is not unlike the rowe experience.

"In other sports people see action, but in rowing it's for pe ple who don't crave attention."

Joining the Strokes is ch cheap — membership is open anyone who registers and co $970 a year. Ten percent of t members are on some form scholarship.

King is optimistic about t future of rowing in the Bay Ar

"Twenty years from now head of the (Oakland) estu will be like the head of Charles," he said, referring to river that divides Boston fr Cambridge, noted for the histo duels between Ivy League row ing teams.

"Helping kids prepare for lege is our main goal. We try accomplish that by four thing safety, fitness, competitiven and personal growth."

By the looks of things he succeeding.

Storno storms past Scots

By Scott Strain
STAFF WRITER

Piedmont had many opportunities to win its baseball game against St. Mary's on March 26 and didn't do anything with them. The Panthers had one opportunity to win and it was enough. Joe Storno, the only man standing in the St. Mary's pitching rotation, pitched and batted his team to a 7-1 victory at St. Mary's. The win improved the Panthers' record to a non-glittering 5-6 overall record, but a 2-0 standing in the Bay Shore Athletic League. With Salesian's 2-1 victory at Albany, St. Mary's is a half-game behind the 3-0 Chieftains going into the break.

Prep baseball

St. Mary's	7
Piedmont	1

Storno was about as sharp when he had to be, getting the big outs when he had to as the Highlanders (6-3, 1-1) left 12 runners stranded in the first six innings. Storno, a senior, wriggled out of every jam he put himself into. Piedmont's only run, scored in the fifth to tie the game at 1-1, was unearned.

Piedmont left one runner on in the first, three in the second and two in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth innings. The only time Storno retired the side in order was the seventh, when the Highlanders seemed a little dispirited at having wasted so many opportunities.

So the Panthers' one-armed band goes into the San Marin Easter Tournament this weekend with undefeated league record and a sub-.500 overall record. "We've used players who haven't pitched before," St. Mary's coach Andy Shimabukuro said. "We're that thin. We just want to win the league games."

It's a good philosophy. The Panthers played Piedmont close, like the important game it was, and it finally paid off with a five-run fifth that broke a 1-1 tie.

Chris Alfert had given St. Mary's a 1-0 edge in the bottom of the third when he whacked a Ben Book fastball off the facade of the football stands in left-center field. The Panthers gave the run back in the top of the fifth when Ryan Tovani doubled, went to third on Danny Rossi's sacrifice fly and scored on an error.

That tie lasted four batters into the St. Mary's fifth. Book walked Marcus Johnson to open the inning and then came the opportunity the Panthers were looking for. Chris Morocco hit a nubber in front of the plate that Book picked up and threw past first baseman Peter Boyle. By the time the runners stopped running, Johnson was on third and Morocco was on second.

Alfert was walked intentionally to load the bases, but Sto made Piedmont pay for t strategy when he blasted a d ble to deep right field that sco Johnson and Morocco for a lead.

"That was big," Storno s about his hit. "They walked t best hitter Chris (Alfert) and been in a slump recently. It good to bash that guy (Book was a fastball over the middl the plate and a little low. Befo he was pitching me all outs the ump was giving it to a little. I crowded the plate a made an adjustment like coaches told me to do and t the outside pitch away. (Book) came inside."

Chase Moore came up ne and rammed a fast ball deep right field, good for a triple scored Alfert and Storno for Alex Danoff came into relie Book and gave up a run-scor single to Jeff Marshall for the nal run of the inning.

The Panthers scored thei nal run in the sixth on two rors. Storno pitched a perf seventh for the victory.

"I just wanted to make sur shut them out (in the seventh he said. "I didn't want to gu them any hope."

He didn't.

Albany blasts Rebels; Berkeley wins San Marin

By Joe Stiglich
TIMES STAFF WRITER

MARTINEZ — The only thing Albany High School baseball coach Jim Giblin asks Ian Gordon to do is carry his share of the load.

The junior catcher did that — and then some — as the Cougars routed San Lorenzo 10-1 on Wednesday to take third place in the Alhambra Easter Classic tournament.

Benicia won the tournament, beating San Leandro 2-1.

Gordon epitomized Albany's turnaround from a lackluster 5-1 loss to Benicia the day before.

He finished 4-for-4 with two doubles, three RBI and two runs scored as the Cougars (10-4) pounded out 13 hits and flourished at the plate with runners in scoring position.

Gordon, the Cougars' No. 3 hitter, went 0-for-3 on Tuesday against Benicia.

"Sometimes he puts unneeded pressure on himself," Giblin said. "I said to him, 'You can't put (the team) on your back and carry them. Everybody in the lineup has a job to do.'"

Gordon got lots of help offensively against the Rebels (5-7). James Izumizaki went 2-for-3 with an RBI and two runs, Robert Diaz added two RBI and a run and leadoff man Matt Ball had an RBI and scored three runs.

Junior Mike Clement (2-1) got the victory on the mound, throwing four shutout innings and giving up just one hit with three strikeouts. Thomas Coble came on in relief and allowed three hits and an unearned run.

"We hit the ball better and were more disciplined at the plate," said Gordon, a third-year varsity player. "We got runners on base. The whole team came together in every aspect."

The Cougars broke things open off San Lorenzo left-hander Kyle Burkman (2-3) with a five-run third inning to go up 7-0. Gordon ripped an RBI double down the left-field line and Diaz had a two-run single to highlight the inning.

SAN MARIN CLASSIC
Berkeley 6, San Marin 3

Sean Souders went the distance, giving up no earned runs with three hits and nine strikeouts as the Yellow Jackets won back-to-back championships in the San Marin Classic with a win over the host Mustangs in Novato.

The Mustangs took an early 3-1 lead before the Yellow Jackets broke the game open with five runs in the bottom of the second.

Souders' grounder to second with the bases loaded to cut the lead to 3-2. Berkeley stormed ahead on a two-run triple by tournament MVP Lee Franklin and a two-run single by Clinton Calhoun.

El Cerrito 10, St. Mary's 9

The Gauchos (9-3) overcame eight errors and score one run in the bottom of the eighth inning to break a 9-9 tie against the Panthers (5-9), who finished winless in three tournament games.

Jacob Lucas, who went 2-for-4 with two RBI, knocked in Randy Minix for the winnung run.

Josh Harvey went 3-for-4 with two runs scored and had two doubles for El Cerrito.

Duffy to attend Cal; Johnson to Marylan

By Phil Jensen

St. Mary's track stars Bridget Duffy and Tiffany Johnson both had Cal and Maryland on their short list of college choices.

But that's where their college similarity ended. Duffy has made an oral commitment to attend Cal on a full scholarship, and Johnson has picked Maryland and orally committed to a partial scholarship.

Duffy, a two-time California Interscholastic Federation Division IV state cross country champion, made official visits to Maryland and Cal before choosing the Bears.

"I really like the people and the team," said Duffy, who finished fourth in the 1,600 meters in last year's CIF State Track and Field Championships. "I've known (Cal distance coach Tony Sandoval) for quite a while. I wanted to stay in California."

But what won Duffy over, ultimately, was Cal's academic reputation. "It's one of the best schools around," said Duffy, who has a 3.7 grade point average.

It also doesn't hurt that D set personal records in the and 3,200 meters at Edwards dium last year at the North Section Meet of Champion

Johnson, a sprinter jumper who has competed state championships the las seasons, was set on goin Stanford, but wasn't admi Then St. Mary's coach Jay son received a call from M land sprint coach Tony Gor

"(Lawson said), why don listen to what he has to say don't have anything to lose," Johnson. So she listened, took a trip to the College campus in January.

"I really liked the coache that was important to me," Johnson, who has a 3.5 gpa. students said that the coaches supportive with academics, and graduation rate (of the team) high. That impressed me."

Goofball 'Big Trouble' sets up a linkage of laughter

By Vera H-C Chan

Instant MTV category: Best toe-sucking scene. Winner: Stanley Tucci.

To know Tucci is to love him, and if you don't know him, you'll probably recognize him ("Big Night," "Winchell," Richard Cross in "Murder One"). If you don't recognize him, you won't forget him after you see him in "Big Trouble" as Arthur Herk, a herky-jerky wealthy sleaze who is understandably the target of an assassination.

Tucci is just one of an ensemble cast, and his toe-sucking of his unwilling and repulsed Mexican maid, Nina (Sofia Vergara), is one of many lunatic moments in the comedy, directed by Barry Sonnenfeld ("Get Shorty," "Men in Black").

The one person to introduce a logic in the madness, and who does the voice-over narration, is Tim Allen as former Miami Herald Pulitzer Prize-winning columnist Eliot Arnold. ("Big Trouble," by the way, is based on the book by current Miami Herald Pulitzer Prize-winning columnist Dave Barry.) Arnold has left his job of 18 years, gotten divorced and opened an advertising agency, where he must placate blustering low-rent clients with a tawdry magnitude registering 9 on the Richter scale. His son, Matt (Ben Foster), lives with him, even though the teen-ager isn't happy at the moment with their genetic connection.

Matt, though, is the one who unwittingly involves the Arnolds in the insane chain of events. He and pal Andrew (DJ Qualls) infiltrate the home of schoolmate Jenny Herk (Zooey Deschanel), who is Matt's assigned squirt-gun target in a game called "Serial Killer." That same night, two New York assassins, Henry (Dennis Farina) and Leonard (Jack Kehler), have come to off Herk, caught skimming by his corrupt construction company employers.

The antics are witnessed from a treetop vantage point by gentle Fritos-eating vagrant Puggy (Jason Lee), who has come to Miami after reading a Martha Stewart Living rave review of the town's Cuban food. Puggy is one of the threads in the collision of characters, coincidence and chaos — that and a suitcase bomb. The bomb, by the way (which makes its way through airport security twice), is the scenario that postponed the comedy's October 2001 opening date.

"Big Trouble" recalls the ensemble comedies of the '70s, such as Peter Bogdanovich's "What's Up, Doc?" which in turn harkened back to the screwball comedies of the '30s and '40s, so its off-kilter pedigree isn't too

Same old Judd in formulaic 'Crimes'

By Mary F. Pols
STAFF WRITER

In the celebrity zoo we all patronize, certain actors seem to have been born, or perhaps trained, to play very specific characters we happen to like or admire. We want bubbly goodwill, we go to a Cameron Diaz movie. Julia Roberts tends to give us vulnerable girls who just want love. Jodie Foster is all determination and capability; we'd trust her with our lives.

Ashley Judd has her own type. She likes to play feisty, smart girls, like Foster, but you get the sense that if she were pitching herself in a meeting with studio heads, she'd describe herself as a sexier Foster. She is more obviously sexy, but she's also got a self-centered frostiness Foster doesn't have. We'd never trust her with our lives, just hers (we'd also trust her characters to pick our shoes as well).

In "High Crimes," she plays just such a character, the successful, efficient yuppie attorney Claire Kubik, who pronounces "voir dire" as proudly and properly as the announcer at a spelling bee. Claire and her husband, Tom (Jim Caviezel, seen most recently in "The Count of Monte Cristo"), live in Marin, in a palatial Craftsman-style house with a big yard. According to the production notes, Tom is a contractor, although all we see him do is muck around in his wood shop.

Claire and Tom are very content. They gaze lovingly at each other, walk arm-in-arm and happily fulfill the obligations posed by their ovulation predicting kits. Claire's a witch-on-wheels at work, but show her a baby and she goes all gushy. Christmas shopping in Union Square with Tom, she stops a woman and coos, "Can we meet your baby?"

Eastenders double bill teams the old and new

JACK TUCKER
Community Theater

Here's a short good-bye and a long hello to the Eastenders Repertory Company. Short because you have only three opportunities left to catch its 2002 season opener. Long because the company is already looking ahead to its fourth annual one-act festival in September and October.

"Tenn in 2002!" — an intriguing double bill — plays at 8 tonight and Saturday and closes with a 3 p.m. matinee Sunday. The first part of the duo is "The Long Good-bye," perhaps the first of the "memory plays" by Tennessee Williams. Now here's the neat part. The second part consists of eight original short pieces — inspired by "Good-bye" — created in Eastenders' new writers' workshop.

The Act II collection is called "Hello's the Word," the title of one of the new pieces as well as a line from "The Long Good-bye."

"Good-bye" is of historical significance. The 1940 one-act premiered for three performances as a student production by the New York School for Social Research. It was Williams' first New York production. The play — with its brief glimpses of dysfunctional family relationships, lost innocence and aborted dreams — is an obvious precursor of "The Glass Menagerie."

By tying this early work of the emerging master playwright with eight different takes on the work by its own new writers, Eastenders is providing an intriguing look across the spectrum of theatrical creativity at the onset of inspiration.

The fall festival of one-acts will be an all-Tennessee Williams event.

"Tenn in 2002" is showing at the Eureka Theatre, 215 Jackson St., San Francisco. Eastenders, which got its start in the East Bay and several of whose actors and directors still live over here, is one of four companies who have now found a theater home with Eureka.

Tickets are $15. Call 510-434-0734.

SOMEWHAT STICKY 'DOORS': Alan Ayckbourn's comic time-warping thriller, "Communicating Doors," continues its weekend run through May 29 at the Masquers Playhouse, 105 Park Place, Point Richmond.

OUTCALL SEX SPECIALIST Poupee, actress Heidi Wolff, cowers behind a "Communicating Door" that shuttle her 20 years into the past and a murder plot that concern her closely.

The intentional fun of this typical British door-slammer is heightened — yet sometimes impeded — by the dramatic plot device that oscillates in time from 2002 back to 1982 and forward to 2022. The times changes are indicated by strobe-lit revolving doors.

A London sex specialist from the future named Poopay (Heidi Wolff) comes to a suite in the Regal Hotel at the behest of an old man who eschews a fling in favor of confessing to his role in the demise of two wives. The murders took place in the earlier years.

Poopay gets drawn into this bizarre situation. The lights flash, the doors turn, each of the dead wives (Sarah Andrews and Carolyn Cox) appear live as they were in the years of

NOW PLAYING

Below are capsule reviews of movies playing at area theaters. The reviewers are Vera H-C Chan and Mary F. Pols, Times; Robert W. Butler, Knight Ridder Newspapers; Anthony Breznican, David Germain, Christy Lemire, Tim Molloy, Sheila Norman-Culp and Matt Wolf, Associated Press; Stephen Holden, Dave Kehr, Elvis Mitchell, A.O. Scott and Lawrence Van Gelder, New York Times; Valerie Kuklenski, Bob Strauss and Glenn Whipp, Los Angeles Daily News; Kevin Thomas, Los Angeles Times; Gary Dowell, Tom Maurstad, Chris Vognar and Philip Wuntch, Dallas Morning News; and Roger Moore, Orlando Sentinel.

"ALL ABOUT THE BENJAMINS": An occasional burst of visual inventiveness livens up this standard-issue crime-comedy. Ice Cube plays Bucum Jackson, a Miami bounty hunter in pursuit of Reggie Write (Mike Epps), a serial bail-jumper. When Reggie takes a wrong turn into a storage complex where a bloody jewel heist has just gone down, the murderous crooks shoot their way past Bucum, unaware that Reggie is hiding in their getaway van. Reggie and Bucum both escape, but the bad guys now have Reggie's wallet along with his $60 million lottery ticket. When Bucum finally tracks Reggie down, the longtime antagonists join forces to get the ticket back. — B. Strauss. (R: violence, sex, language.) 1 hour, 37 minutes. C+

"AMELIE": A feel-good movie in the best possible sense, a comic fable from French director Jean-Pierre Jeunet that vibrates with joy and fast-dances with life. Amelie (the relentlessly charming Audrey Tautou) is a lonely young lady who keeps a watchful eye on the rest of the world. One day she sets out to reunite a child's treasure with its long-grown owner and discovers she likes playing emotional Robin Hood. Setting out on a path to help her neighbors and the denizens of the cafe where she works, she inadvertently trips into a love affair with a guy (Mathieu Kassovitz) who might be as sweetly eccentric as she is. Every time you think the movie is getting too sticky-sweet, Jeunet throws something tart and funny in our path. — M. Pols. (R: sexual content.) 2 hours. A

"A BEAUTIFUL MIND": Very good by-the-book filmmaking from director Ron Howard. The film spans 47 years in the life of John Forbes Nash Jr. (Russell Crowe), a mathematical genius who won the Nobel Prize for economics in 1994. Doubtless the element that made Crowe want to play Nash (brilliantly, as usual) is that Nash also suffers from schizophrenia, and has for decades. Daring only in its subject matter — math and mental illness — the movie follows the careful trajectory of a classic inspirational story, occasionally veering into the medicinal, but still undeniably moving and effective. Jennifer Connelly is excellent as Nash's wife. — M. Pols. (PG-13: intense thematic material, sexual content and a scene of violence.) 2 hours, 8 minutes. B+

"BLADE II": Wesley Snipes returns as a half-man/half-vampire hero waging a blood feud against a race of full-blooded vampires in this sequel based on the Marvel comic book character. The film opens with Blade rampaging through legions of bloodsuckers in a mission to rescue his mentor, Whistler (Kris Kristofferson), who seemingly died in the first movie. Reunited, Blade and Whistler are reluctantly drawn into an alliance with the vampire overlord and his daughter to fight a new breed of super-vampires that threatens humans and regular bloodsuckers. As with the first film, the only way to get through "Blade II" is if there's a complete disconnection of that part of the brain that determines when something is really, really silly. — D. Germain. (R: strong pervasive violence, language, some drug use and sexual content.) 1 hour, 57 minutes. C

"CLOCKSTOPPERS": Jesse Bradford stars as Zak, who is smitten by the new exchange student Francesca (Paula Garces) and is pals with Meeker (Garikayi Mutambirwa). Zak's chances with the babe and his friend's chances at the big DJ competition improve when a hyper-time wrist device falls into the hands of his bland scientist-dad and then into Zak's. It speeds up molecules so that its wearer and the wearer's friends (how convenient) are moving too fast for the rest of the world to see. The novel special effects are wasted on this comic thriller with few laughs and fewer thrills. — R. Moore. (PG: action, violence and mild language.) 1 hour, 34 minutes. D+

"DEATH TO SMOOCHY": The plot's satirical arena is the wicked world of kid-show networks, which, according to the screenplay, is an evil playground of payola to underworld connections. But the only real sin is getting caught, which is exactly what happens to egomaniacal show host Rainbow Randolph (Robin Williams). He's busted for accepting a suitcase of big bucks from feds posing as parents who want their son to receive star treatment. The washed-up Rainbow watches in horror as Sheldon Mopes (Edward Norton) takes his place. Sheldon, with his creation Smoochy, a huggable rhino who promotes good health and feel-good ditties, soon becomes a media superstar. This film has the makings of a sharp, stinging satire, but the finished product trades wicked wit for abrasiveness. — P. Wuntch. (R: language, violence, sex, drugs.) 1 hour, 49 minutes. C

"E.T. THE EXTRA-TERRESTRIAL": The 20th anniversary rerelease underscores less what prompted director Steven Spielberg's later legacy than what has gone missing: a patient, sweet devotion to storytelling. The film's tender intelligence and sweet humor remind us how much cinematic shorthand has truncated emotion in the mad rush toward special effects. A stranded alien ends up in the home of Elliott (Henry Thomas), whose parents have recently separated. E.T. becomes not a paternal figure or substitute son, but a friend who introduces the possibility of hope. Some scenes have been restored, and the most notable change is that guns have been replaced by walkie-talkies, but the image of the government as an invasive dark undercurrent remains. — V. Chan. (PG: language, mild thematic elements.) 2 hours. A

"THE FELLOWSHIP OF THE RING": A soulful, passionate giant of a movie, one that will live long past 2001. New Zealand director Peter Jackson's ("Heavenly Creatures") adaptation of the first third of J.R.R. Tolkien's epic "Lord of the Rings" enraptures you with its dramatic storytelling and visuals and leaves you rejoicing that there are filmmakers out there who have the guts to make a movie destined for vast commercial success that's also intelligent and ferociously heartfelt. Terrifying when it should be, moving when it should be, this holds true to Tolkien's vision. One of the best movies of the year. — M. Pols. (PG-13: epic battle sequences and scary images.) 2 hours, 58 minutes. A

"THE FLUFFER": This movie begins as a light satire on the gay porn industry, but then develops parallel stories of thwarted love and emerges as a film of substance. The film's protagonist, Sean (Michael Cunio), is determined to break into the film industry. To pay the bills, he gets a job at a gay porn production company as a cameraman, but he is expected to do anything he's told to — including physically getting the company's megastar, Johnny Rebel (Scott Gurney), in the mood to perform for the camera. Johnny's popularity has peaked, and his relationship with an aspiring actress (Roxanne Day), who works at a strip club, is increasingly strained. Johnny is one of many porn stars who make gay pictures because they pay better than straight porn does. This fine example of modest-budget filmmaking boasts first-rate acting, writing and directing. — K. Thomas. (NR) 1 hour, 35 minutes. B

"40 DAYS AND 40 NIGHTS": The most thoroughly entertaining naughty movie to come along yet this short year. Brokenhearted Matt (Josh Harnett, exuding star quality amid nice comic timing) decides to give up sex for Lent to help himself recover from being dumped. Obstacles arise, including the arrival of the girl of his dreams (Shannyn Sossamon). The film is plagued by the conventions of romantic comedy, but funny in a sweet, though extremely frank, way, thanks largely to director Michael Lehmann, who has a deft hand with the topic of sex. Decency mavens, skip this one. —M. Pols. (R: strong sexual content, nudity and language.) 1 hour, 33 minutes. B

"GOSFORD PARK": There are no tutus or tights in this comic murder mystery from director Robert Altman, but make no mistake, this is ballet on film. Every aspect, from its ultimate ensemble cast to the meticulous re-creation of the stale England of years gone by, could have been treacherous, but instead it emerges triumphant, spinning together as elegantly as a stage full of dancers en pointe, moving in unbelievable unison. It's 1932 and times are changing for the gentry. Altman's camera dips, whirls and races along, tying together the moneyed upstairs of a country estate and the still respectful but increasingly resentful downstairs. He hasn't been this good in a decade. — M. Pols. (R: some language and brief sexuality.) 2 hours, 17 minutes. A

"I AM SAM": All movies are manipulative on some level, but this one, cut from the cloth of movies of the week, is ruthlessly intent on reducing its audience to snuffling marionettes. Sean Penn is very good as a mentally challenged man trying to hold onto his young daughter (Dakota Fanning), even though the courts say she'd be better off with a "normal" foster family. So is Michelle Pfeiffer, playing the brittle, selfish lawyer who learns a life lesson while trying to help him. But neither of them can overcome the cloying, patronizing and endless story. The soundtrack, however, with covers of great Beatles songs done by today's gods and goddesses of music, is the best thing about this movie. — M. Pols. (PG-13: language.) 2 hours, 12 minutes. C-

"ICE AGE": The plot for this animated film looks back 20,000 years when all creatures were planning a southbound exodus before the big freeze. Solitude-craving woolly mammoth Manny and chatterbox Sid, a lazy sloth, have the makings of a prehistoric odd couple, but they become creatures of action when they must return a lost infant to his human tribe. Saber-toothed tiger Diego joins them, but with his own agenda. The screenplay's clever patter has pop-culture references and sophisticated exchanges that may sail over the heads of some audience members. But kids probably will lap up much of the film. — P. Wuntch. (PG: scenes of peril.) 1 hour, 27 minutes. B

"IN THE BEDROOM": A beautifully directed, written and acted movie about guilt, blame and loss, set in a small seaside town in Maine. Sissy Spacek and Tom Wilkinson star as parents whose lives change after their son (Nick Stahl) gets involved in a potentially dangerous relationship. Spacek will almost certainly get an Oscar nomination for her unrelentingly powerful performance, and first-time director Todd Field has made a name for himself. Bleak, but one of the year's best. — M. Pols. (R: some violence and language.) 2 hours, 10 minutes. A

"IRIS": A delicately evocative movie that will turn you into a puddle of tears if you have any personal experience with Alzheimer's or dementia. Three of the four main actors in this movie have been nominated for Oscars, and deservedly so. Judi Dench plays novelist Iris Murdoch in her later years, as Alzheimer's begins to destroy her brilliant mind, while Kate Winslet plays her young and full of life. Jim Broadbent is wonderful as the older version of her husband, John Bayley, who wrote the memoir the movie is based on. As young John, Hugh Bonneville got left out of the Oscar race, but only because you'll just assume he's Broadbent with great makeup. Yes, the story is devastating, but it's as much about love as it is about loss, and with acting like this what more incentive do you need to see this film? — M. Pols. (R: Sexuality, nudity, some language.) 1 hours, 30 minutes. A

"ITALIAN FOR BEGINNERS": Strangest of surprises, the latest offering from Dogma 95, the Danish film movement more known for being disturbing than for being cheery, introduces the concept of love and happiness to the movement. Six lonely people take Italian lessons one week in Copenhagen and begin, tentatively, to gravitate toward each other. Not a traditional chick flick, though; it's got its share of depressing elements, suicide, death, addiction, fetal alcohol syndrome and sexual dysfunction, buried with the froth of love and comedy. And as inescapable a Dogma movie: murky and drab. But its still got the heart to warm us through the chill of winter. — M. Pols. (R: language and some sexuality.) 1 hour, 39 minutes. A-

"KISSING JESSICA STEIN": Here's the good news: This romantic comedy about two single women who seek each other out after growing tired of dating men is endearing, warm and funny and often laugh-out-loud hilarious. Now for the bad part: After providing such insight in such a charming way, its ending is just too pat and safe. Jennifer Westfeldt and Heather Juergensen are charming actresses, almost making us forget the stinky ending. — C. Lemire. (R: sexual content and language.) 1 hour, 36 minutes. C+

"LANTANA": The discovery of a corpse sets the theme for this movie, though it is just as much a police thriller as it is a complex psychological investigation into the nature and difficulties of mar-abby. In a way, though, it's less ensemble than an intersection partners. Andrew covers uirt-gun-toting Matt's back, na Herk (Rene Russo) and ughter Jenny ally against slimy cond husband and stepfather thur, Jesus figure Puggy and Herks' shapely Catholic maid na fall in love at first sighting, ed assassins are disgusted w York-fish-out-of-Miami-wa- moron convicts Snake (Tom emore) and Eddie (Johnny noxville) bond in their play- und humor, Monica (Janeane rofalo) is smart cop to her not- bright partner Walter (Patrick Warburton), while bomb-trackers Greer and Seitz (Omar Epps, Heavy D) pull the good FBI agent/bad FBI agent stunt. Even minor characters like Russian bar owners and co-pilots come in twos.

The pairings are not unconscious — after all, Puggy puckishly introduces "Big Trouble" with a passage alluding to Noah's ark. Those without backup are loose cannons or losers, like the crooked Arthur and even Eliot, who needs to redeem himself.

Unfortunately, Allen as Eliot is the film's weakest link. Pressure-cooker comedies work best with caricatures, and with only 85 minutes to cook, the ingredients have to be already prepped and ready to go. Director Sonnenfeld tends to abbreviate character development, which could always use another 10 minutes. As it is, Allen doesn't quite pull off the beleaguered wordsmith and nice guy, and the Bunsen burner never heats up enough to make any chemistry between Allen and Russo.

Russo isn't to blame; beneath her peroxide-blond locks beats the heart of a palpably elegant, smart woman — and even with the peroxide job, she's still gorgeous. Buffed-up muscles aside, if Allen doesn't have the looks, he has to have the charm, and if he doesn't have the charm, he better have the wit — but if that mockingbird don't sing, "Big Trouble" still is one of the funnier movies in town.

otect a high-ranking officer. e's whisked off to Southern alifornia (the Alameda naval se stands in for the fictional n Lazaro base) for his military ial and Claire follows.

His military-assigned attorney n untried young lieutenant dam Scott) with jug ears and sweet disposition, so Claire es looking for a rebel who nows military law to help her efend Tom/Ron. She finds one harlie Grimes, a talented but ashed-up alcoholic with self- nfidence issues. Charlie is a ock character, but he's played y that deliciously smooth Mor- an Freeman (Judd's co-star om "Kiss the Girls"), so we can't ally complain. Freeman injects much humor and class into his cenes that he makes the movie 0 times more watchable than it ould be without him.

To be fair to Judd, she's cer- inly decent enough. But this role nothing more than a reprise of er woman-in-peril role in "Dou- e Jeopardy." The thing is that nyone who saw her in "Ruby in radise" or that fine cameo as a sty drug addict in "Smoke" ows she has more talent than is on display in star vehicles such as "High Crimes." She used to be the kind of actress who took small roles, like the one she had in "Heat," and made them more interesting than other actresses would. But now she seems stuck in the genre of pluck.

If you thought the military was portrayed as creepy in "A Few Good Men," "High Crimes" goes much further, rendering virtually the entire organization as completely corrupt and beyond redemption. Charlie, Claire and her sister Jackie (Amanda Peet, frisky and fun as always) are constantly and viciously terrorized by various foot soldiers in the plot to convict Tom/Ron. If the military were as absurdly evil as "High Crimes" makes it out to be, soldiers would be pounding into movie theaters and demanding that the film be turned off immediately.

But then again, there were projection problems at the preview screening of "High Crimes." (Kidding!) In the interest of full disclosure, I missed an estimated 10 minutes of the action in the middle of the picture. The preview audience bayed with displeasure, and I, too, was annoyed. But at nearly two hours, "High Crimes" must be longer than it needs to be, because when it was all over, there were no lingering questions resulting from those missing minutes.

When a movie is as formulaic as this one, anyone with even minimal exposure to the genre of American thrillers, whether it be in books, movies or television, can fill in the blanks. They can also guess the "surprise" ending. We've been spoiled over the years, by cool endings that really do throw us for a loop, such as the stunners at the end of "The Sixth Sense" or "The Usual Suspects."

What's astounding is that anyone in Hollywood really thinks we'll actually be surprised by an ending like the one at the end of "High Crimes." As soon as a mediocre movie continues past its logical ending — i.e., in a legal drama like this one, either the court loss or court victory — we know we're being set up for the final twist. Ooh, and then maybe another one.

Movies like "High Crimes" flog the dead horse of surprise as if it were an obligation. How about surprising us by trying something new?

ge. The film focuses on four couples, d with a cast top-lined by Anthony Paglia, Geoffrey Rush and Barbara rshey, it doesn't lack for the intensity d emotion to make its story convinc- . All these people figure in the story iched to that corpse. Although we mually get the information we need, e of it comes to us directly. Rather, ntana" feeds us knowledge slowly d obliquely. This remarkably thought- drama makes it clear not only how rd it is to come by any emotional mfort in this life, but, more impor- tly, why we can't give up on the uggle. — K. Turan. (R: language and uality.) 2 hours. A-

HE MAN WHO WASN'T THERE": an and Joel Coen's chilly black-and- ite homage to film noir plays out like reative lark, the kind of experimenta- n artists indulge in once the bills are id. Billy Bob Thornton is fascinating watch as a late 1940s barber who ikes the mistake of blackmailing his e's lover (James Gandolfini) to get capital to invest in a dry cleaning siness. With its fantastically cool look d dry wit, this is distinctly Coen broth- s fare, but if you compare it to their st work, it feels more like an itch the others needed to scratch than, say, argo." Of course, with them, even an itch is going to be entertaining. — M. ols. (R: a scene of violence.) 1 hour, minutes B

ONSOON WEDDING": An accom- shed and entrancing blend of com- y and drama from director Mira Nair ississippi Masala"). Over four days, ustered Punjabi patriarch prepares an arranged marriage between his y daughter and an engineer from ston. Unfortunately the bride is still ove with her married lover, and her ster cousin is about to drop a mbshell on the family. As thoroughly ghing, subtle, steamy and balanced ween serious and joyous as the best dings actually are. — M. Pols. (R: guage, including some sex-related logue.) 1 hour, 54 minutes. A-

ONSTER'S BALL": Loneliness hangs er the first half of director Marc ster's movie like a sheet of rain: the eliness of a single mother (Halle rry), of a man going to the electric air (Sean Combs) and a friendless st who has just realized he has noth- to live for (Billy Bob Thornton). Berry d Thornton are both outstanding as a ir of unlikely lovers. A bleak and autiful movie, and while the rain ar stops, it does ease up, offering e of the most delicately redemptive ries we've seen since "Dead Man lking." — M. Pols. (R: strong sexual ntent, language, violence.) 1 hour, 48 nutes. A

ULHOLLAND DR.": At the end of mind-trip, all you can do is laugh. vid Lynch has once again led us on a ry dance through a minefield littered h freaks, apple-pie moments we can't it, terrifying weirdoes and puzzling, sibly pointless scenes. A beautiful nesiac and a cheery, innocent in- ue set out to solve a mystery. Then y become different people. Chances 's all a dream, or at least half a am. Makes "Memento" look easy to derstand. Lynch probably won't win self any new fans with this one, but ones will enjoy this excursion into creative mind. — M. Pols. (R: violence, language and some strong sexuality.) 2 hours, 26 minutes. B+

"NO SUCH THING": Hal Hartley's tender yet lacerating and darkly funny fable certainly isn't for everyone; the more literal-minded will disconnect early on. Robert John Burke plays a monster who's had it with humanity — that is, until he meets an aide (Sarah Polley) from a tabloid TV news show. The film is at times too pokey and too talky for its own good, but it is strongly sustained by the force of Hartley's vision and performances by Helen Mirren as Polley's boss, as well as Julie Christie as a doctor, and the two principals in the cast. — K. Thomas. (R: language and brief violence.) 1 hour, 43 minutes. B

"PANIC ROOM": Ignore the hype — and go see this thriller of a woman and her daughter trapped in their home with three male intruders. Star Jodie Foster is a superb match for director David Fincher ("Seven," "Fight Club"), who excels in showing the physical expression of the psychological interior, especially when the latter bubbles over in a lunatic fury. Foster, as freshly divorced Meg Altman, and her smart, bitter daughter Sarah (an excellent performance by Kristen Stewart) move into a four-story brownstone with a "panic room" complete with impregnable steel walls, surveillance monitors and independent air, water and electrical supply. They must resort to that room the very first night after three men (Jared Leto, Forest Whitaker, Dwight Yoakum) break in, and the standoff begins, since what they want lies within the panic room. — V. Chan. (R: violence, language.) 1 hour, 48 minutes. A

"RESIDENT EVIL": Sure, it's based on an enormously popular series of games. But haven't we had enough joyless joystick adaptations? The film is presented as a prequel to the games. When a virus is released, an underground research complex is sealed off, and a group of commandos is dispatched to find out what happened. Milla Jovovich plays an amnesiac who's had her memory drained. She has a decent action-hero presence that goes to waste in the movie's miasma of silly stunts, drab dialogue and obnoxious industrial music. — D. Germain. (R: strong sci-fi/horror, violence, language and brief sexuality/nudity.) 1 hour, 40 minutes. D+

"THE ROOKIE": Critics tend to complain a lot about the violence and stupidity that pervades American cinema, so you might wonder whether we then feel obliged to praise a G-rated movie like this baseball movie simply because it's squeaky-clean. Not so. "The Rookie" is a good movie not because of what it leaves out, but because of what it leaves in. It's got a quiet, gentle grace, decency and dignity. Dennis Quaid plays Jim Morris, a real pitcher whose career was cut short as a young man because of a shoulder injury. Now he's teaching high school chemistry and coaching the local version of the Bad News Bears. When his team makes a bet with him, he unexpectedly finds himself with a fresh chance at the game he loves. The resolution of his relationship with his cold unfeeling father (Brian Cox) is a bit pat, but this is a lovely family movie. Quaid gives a genuine, understated performance. Rachel Griffiths plays his wife; Angus T. Jones his beguiling son. — M. Pols. (G) 2 hours. B+

"THE ROYAL TENENBAUMS": There's such an ironic distance to director Wes Anderson's playful, highly stylized movie about a family of failed, alienated geniuses that it's like watching a cinematic version of the eccentric literary quarterly McSweeney's, something exquisitely crafted for maximum cleverness. What saves it from being gag-me precious is the fact that Anderson also has a tender heart to go along with his fetish for detail and eye for the absurd. Amid all the movie's mannerisms are some truisms about family that knock you for an unexpectedly emotional loop. All the performances are delightful, but Gene Hackman, as the Tenenbaums' rascal of a patriarch, is unforgettable. — M. Pols. (R: some language, sexuality/nudity and drug content.) 1 hour, 48 minutes. A-

"SHOWTIME": William Shatner's bit part in this sendup of those mismatched buddy movies like "Lethal Weapon" is the best part of this rather anemic comedy. Eddie Murphy plays a vain cop who wants to be a movie star and Robert De Niro plays an old-school detective. They're thrown together as stars of a reality-based cop show. There's definite potential here, but it's squandered in middle-of-the-road material. The two stars are hardly at their best, either. — M. Pols. (PG-13: action violence, language and some drug content.) 1 hour, 35 minutes. C-

"SORORITY BOYS": This lamebrained attempt to update "Animal House" stars Harland Williams, Barry Watson and Michael Rosenbaum as a trio of frat boys who get tossed out of their fraternity. Their scheme to get back in involves sneaking in to retrieve an incriminating video. To do that, they have to dress up like girls and join the sorority next door. And who wouldn't want to get back into their fraternity? Oh, the beer busts, the orgies, the sleazy legions of self-esteem-deprived babes. This film is an R-rated disgrace, but it will be a laugh riot to anyone who hasn't seen men in dresses before — 14-year-olds and their intellectual equivalents. — R. Moore. (R: crude sexual content, nudity, strong language and some drug use.) 1 hour, 34 minutes. F

"THE TIME MACHINE": This new adaptation of H.G. Wells' classic futuristic story is directed by Simon Wells, great-grandson of H.G. himself. Surely a direct descendant wouldn't soil the memory of either the book or George Pal's 1960 film, right? Well, yes and no. The story has been expanded to present a motivation for the Time Traveler's (Guy Pearce) journey, a romance that the elder Wells might have scoffed at, or at the very least been bored by. On the other hand, some cool elements have been added, including several clever bits of homage to Pal's film and special effects that reflect how far the technology has come since 1960. — M. Pols. (PG-13: intense scenes of action violence.) 1 hour, 36 minutes. B-

"WE WERE SOLDIERS": A surprisingly old-fashioned Vietnam War movie dwelling on the heroism of the soldiers who fought the first major ground battle with the North Vietnamese in 1965. Mel Gibson is fine but not great as the thoughtful officer who leads them into battle. A lack of political context, too much schmaltz and overly graphic war violence unfortunately hold the film back, and it rings too often with the same sort of voice director Randall Wallace used in his cheesy script for "Pearl Harbor." — M. Pols. (R: sustained scenes of graphic war violence and language.) 2 hours, 18 minutes. C their demise. A frantic race ensues to race back and forth in time to rewrite history and prevent the deadly deeds from happening in the first place.

It's over-long, but seems a little more plausible on stage — with the accent on "little."

John Mercer, C. Conrad Cady and Gary Howes complete the energetic cast. Serena Anderson directs. And a special bravo for set designer Rob Bradshaw and the construction crew. The elegant suite is a knockout — indeed, there's a knocked-out wall displaying a real live bathroom, including a bidet which has a minor role in the proceedings.

Now, don't get carried away!

Curtain at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays; 2:30 on Sundays, April 7, 21 and 28. Tickets are $12. Call 510-232-4031.

CLASSIC FRENCH PASTRY: If you're looking for something farcical with a different flavor try "A Flea in Her Ear," the classic French farce by Georges Feydeau, opening April 12 at Altarena Playhouse, 1409 High Street, Alameda.

Cotton-candy fluffy and arguably one of the funniest plays ever written, it's a breakneck romp through scenes of romantic intrigue, mistaken identities, jealous rages and revolving beds.

"Flea in Her Ear" is directed by Brian Siewert and produced by Deborah Robbins. It plays at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through May 12 with Sunday matinees on April 21 (sold out) and 28 and May 5 and 12.

Tickets are $12 general admission; $9 for seniors and students. Racy fun for grownups, but not recommended for children. Call 510-523-1553.

IT'S 'CARNIVAL' TIME: Before we leave Altarena, here's an audition of interest for all you songbirds and nimble-footers. The theater will be casting the musical "Carnival" on April 15 and 16 at 7 p.m. at the playhouse. Randall Metz, director; David Howitt, musical director, and George Adams, choreographer, are looking for six men (ages 25-60) and five women (16-60) for principal roles and six to eight people of all ages for a mixed chorus. Bring a song in your key. Be prepared to move and read from the script.

Circus skills are especially desirable. A puppeteer and a drummer are also needed.

Performance dates are weekends from May 31 through June 30.

For additional information, you can reach Metz at 510-569-3144, or e-mail questions to puppetcom@hotmail.com.

AND 'SHAKE' A FINALE: And how about exiting today's outing in a blaze of glory? That means, of course, with the revered Bard, William Shakespeare, whose romantic tragicomedy "Pericles, Prince of Tyre" opened last night at La Val's Subterranean, 1834 Euclid Ave., Berkeley.

The show continues at 8 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays and at 7 p.m. Sundays through May 4. Tickets are $14 general; $10 for seniors and students, and everybody pays $10 for the Thursday performances. Call 510-234-6046.

The Subterranean Shakespeare production is designed and directed by Jon Wai-keung Lowe, and includes, in addition to a cast of eight, puppets by Tara Tucker

ercedes, BMW, exus are most opular cars California

BY MATT NAUMAN
NEWSPAPER NEWS SERVICE

The affluence of Californians, d our yearning for status sym- s, comes through clearly in the s and trucks we bought in 2001. Mercedes-Benz, BMW and us, for instance, are much more pular in California than in the rest he nation

Just-released new-vehicle reg- ation figures for 2001 show that rcedes was the ninth most pop- r brand in the state, while BMW shed 10th and Lexus 11th. Na- ally, those three brands were d, 21st and 19th, respectively. While the U.S. market as a whole moving toward luxury brands, t's especially true on the West East coasts where "people are y image-oriented," said Wes wn, an analyst with NexTrend, housand Oaks automotive con- ancy.

People seemed to agree at the evron Super Station Car Wash Fremont on a recent Friday af- noon.

"More people can afford them e," said Arthur Lin, a computer sman from Fremont. "Especially he Asian community, it is a sta- thing."

Lin was checking the tire pres- e on his '93 BMW 325. Else- ere, workers were towel-drying eab convertible, an Audi station gon and several huge sport-util- s.

Gerry Anderson, a DSL provision nager from Antioch, was dou- checking the wash job on his rs '99 Lexus GS300 sedan. He s a Mercedes-Benz ML 320

MOTOR MATTERS

MINI COOPER and the MINI Cooper S offer excellent handling, but a harsh ride. Photo above shows the interior of the latest British small car with dashboard and gauges.

MINI Cooper models about to create new excitement

MOTOR MATTERS

Younger people will probably do a double take when they see the new MINI Cooper. Those a bit older might recall seeing a similar vehicle in the 1960s.

The MINI Cooper, a popular car in England, has a unique appearance: big wheels set close to each corner and a low, flat roofline.

In spite of its small appearance, the car has plenty of interior roominess and excellent overhead clearance.

The bucket-styled rear seats of this four-passenger, three-door vehicle are quite accessible as both front seats slide far forward with ease. Storage space is minimal, unless the rear seatbacks are lowered.

The MINI Cooper's manually adjusted seats are reasonably comfortable for a vehicle priced at $16,850. Because of its unique appearance, this car is expected to get the same enthusiastic reception as the PT Cruiser and VW Beetle.

But BMW, the parent company of the MINI is still working on its dealer network in the U.S. Currently, there are only 44 dealerships located in only the more populated areas of the country.

Produced in Oxford, England, the limited supply of 20,000 cars for the first full year probably won't fulfill the anticipated demand.

TOM KEANE
Keane on Wheels

The two models — Cooper and Cooper S — come in 12 bright colors. The S model costs about $19,850, as it is equipped with more desirable features. For example, it has run-flat tires that can be driven about 80 miles at 50 mph before having the tire repaired.

These tires are said to have a harder ride, but I didn't notice the difference as both cars have a harsh, bouncy ride. MINI Coopers are fun for the short haul, but a long trip on rough road surfaces can be very tiring.

However, the MINI Cooper has exceptional stability and fine handling because the frame is very rigid, the wheels are on the extreme edges of the vehicle; and there is very little overhang, making maneuvering and parking effortless.

Also, the steering wheel is extremely easy to turn.

Powered by a straight four-cylinder 16-valve engine, the 115 horsepower produces surprisingly good acceleration. The Cooper S has 163 hp linked to a six-speed Getrag manual transmission

The EPA mileage on the Cooper is estimated to be 26 city and 43 highway. T his exceptionally good gas mileage is partially due to the extreme lightweight of only 2,678 pounds, plus sophisticated throttle-by-wire electronic technology that determines the amount of fuel to supply the engine

The unusual design is obvious

Saturn seeks to be talk of town with Sky concept car

MOTOR MATTERS

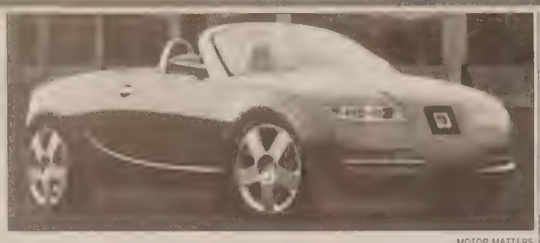

Reaching for the sky: The Saturn Sky, a concept vehicle, has a dual purpose: to turn heads and get people talking

This open-air roadster has a versatile seating package to allow the Sky to convert easily from two-place to four-place seating.

The instrumentation is in the center of the vehicle where everyone can see it.

Although the design is simple, the continuous line around the body adds a sense of wholeness and contemporary feel. The 2.2-liter engine, mated to a five-speed manual transmission, will generate 180 horsepower.

in the U.S. should please Bob Lutz, General Motors North American chairman.

Lutz said if people want heavy, gas-guzzling vehicles, that's what they'll buy.

Only by taxing gasoline the way Europeans do, will buyers rethink their need for driving large vehicles with V8 engines.

Lutz made this analogy of government legislation: attempting to control obesity by forbidding clothing manufacturers to make clothing with large waistlines.

Buyer's market: With so many used cars for sale, which is the result of zero financing, buyers are in the driver's seat.

Also, with the slowdown in travel, more lease vehicles have come onto the market. These factors result in a 19-percent decline in model-year 1999-2000 used vehicle

SUV, but he also has a Mazda 626 that serves as a commuter car.

"It gets no respect at all," he said of the Mazda. People cut him off in traffic and drive too closely to it, he said. "In this car," he said, pointing at the gold Lexus, "they think twice about hitting you."

Luxury brands aren't the only foreign cars favored by Californians. Six of the top 10 best-selling brands last year were from foreign companies.

The cars and trucks from Japanese makers Toyota, Honda and Nissan are more popular here than elsewhere in America.

Polk, the Southfield, Mich., company that tracks registrations, said Toyota was the No. 1 brand in California with individual buyers. Honda was No. 3 and Nissan No. 5.

Nationwide, Ford and Chevrolet were the top two brands, with Toyota third, Dodge fourth, Honda fifth and Nissan sixth.

European cars also are more popular here, with Volkswagen joining BMW and Mercedes-Benz in California's top 10 list.

"California is actually a very good gauge of the way the country is, the way people shop and what brands they like," said Brown. In the Midwest, buyers are often biased by family members who work for car companies, he said.

"Here, you have free will to choose what you want," Brown said. "And when it comes to bulletproof products, they tend to come out of Asia and Europe."

About one in every eight new vehicles sold in the United States last year was registered in California.

Polk said Toyota sold 279,685 vehicles to California customers in 2001. Those numbers reflect retail sales, and exclude sales to fleet buyers and those with more than five registrations at one address.

Ford, which finished second in Polk's numbers, said its Ford Division was the top-selling brand in California when fleet sales are added in.

Devices hold everything but your horses

BY JIM MATEJA
CHICAGO TRIBUNE

CHICAGO — It was so much simpler in the early days

The only "holders" were seats and ashtrays, both designed for butts.

But then came progress, as evidenced by all the vehicles on display at the recent Chicago Auto Show

While cupholders take credit for setting off the "holder" craze, coat holders got things started They weren't very big or very solid and if you wanted to carry more than one item, you tied a string between the ceiling-mounted holders over each rear door to serve as one long hanger

Oh, how things have escalated since then.

The cupholder arrived. Mark Patrick, of the Detroit Public Library's Automotive History division, said the first cupholder that came as part of the vehicle and not an add-on accessory purchased at your favorite retailer was in 1974 in the full-size Dodge Ram van (the name later to be used on the full-size Dodge truck).

The cupholder was imbedded in the plastic shroud covering the engine inside the cabin. In the mid-'80s the cupholder moved into the Chrysler minivans and soon the fad spread.

At first it was simple. One holder for one cup for one person — the driver. But then, competition set in. Two cups for driver and passenger, and then three or four cups for driver and front- and rear-seat passengers.

Cups appeared in the center console — pop out/pop up, slide out/slide up, manual and then hydraulic thanks to Mercedes.

Cups in the dash, cups in the doors, cups in the armrests, even holders built into the seat backs so when you folded the seat down, you had a mini picnic table with cupholder

Not satisfied that some vehicles held more cups than people, consumers asked for more. Why just round cups, why not rectangular juice-box holders for the little kids in minivans?

Ask and you shall receive, and juice box holders arrived in the late '90s; again minivans were the initial target.

Not satisfied with round cups and rectangular juice boxes, consumers asked for more — cupholders with an open side to slip a coffee cup with handle inside.

Ask and you shall receive, and since the late '90s cups with handles can fit in most vehicles. Hmm.

Got so many holders for cups, what about a holder for the milk that goes in them?

Thanks to Saturn, you now can purchase a sport-ute called VUE with a pair of gallon milk jug holders in the back end.

But what if you purchase three gallons of milk?

Many minivans as well as sport-utility vehicles have built plastic grocery-bag holders into the rear seat backs to keep items from being tossed around the cabin. Then Honda added a table holder in the rear floor of its CR-V sport-ute so you can stop, pull out the table and place milk and cups on it while picnicking.

The Pontiac Aztek went Honda one better. It devised a center console that doubles as a cooler that you can carry with you.

The list of holders keeps growing — coin holders, map holders (though navigation systems are making them outdated), pen and pencil holders, tissue holders, cellphone holders, even purse holders (men are told that compartment will handle small briefcases).

Some vehicles have slide-out trays with pop-up holders in the cargo hold that feature sectional dividers so you can hold groceries in one section, toys in another and the wet swimsuits in yet another.

Holders for cassettes evolved into holders for CDs. Then came flip-down video screens and VHS tape holders had to be added, though they've become passe as DVD players arrived and along with them, DVD holders.

inside, too, especially the circular trim of the doors. The dash is available with the choice of silver or wood trim.

The stylish silver speedometer with anti-reflecting glass is uncustomarily located in the center of the dash panel.

The instrument directly in front of the driver is an oversize tachometer. The odometer below the speedometer is clear to read, but the numerals on the trip odometer are a bit too small.

Another design oddity: a row of plain, old-fashioned toggle switches for performing various functions, such as raising or lowering the windows.

Yet both windows have the current feature of auto-down, plus an air-conditioned glove box.

For a vehicle of such small dimensions, one might wonder about safety. Both cars are loaded with safety features not usually found on cars in this price category. The MINIs have six airbags, an extra-strong roof design, traction control and excellent brakes.

These cars come with a fine quality Harmon-Karman sound system. But the sound of oohs and aahs when young people see the MINI should be music to the ears of salespeople as the dealer network grows.

1948 Packard sedan arrives late, but in good condition

MOTOR MATTERS

VERN PARKER
Classic Classics

The last Packard had been built more than 40 years earlier when Hal Hermann attended the centennial of Packard's founding.

The July 1999 celebration at the birthplace of Packard automobiles was in Warren, Ohio. With more than 1,000 Packards from around the world on display, Hermann carefully looked over them all.

What Hermann found most impressive was the quiet 356-cubic-inch, L-head engine introduced in 1940. The powerful straight eight-cylinder powerplant contained nine main bearings, as well as a 105-pound crankshaft, and developed an awesome 160-horsepower.

Hermann went home determined to get a prewar Packard — a 1940, '41 or '42 model — with the majestic 356-cubic-inch engine. The search led to a 1948 Custom 8 Touring Sedan for sale in Houston, Texas. It had sold new for a base price of $3,750.

Hermann talked for hours over the telephone with the owner of the Packard and photographs were sent to add more information to the decision-making process. By October 1999, Hermann had garnered as much data as he could without seeing the car in person

The moment of truth had arrived. "I had to swallow pretty hard," Hermann says, "to buy it on a picture." After wiring the money to Houston, with fingers crossed, he awaited the arrival of the truck carrying his Packard

Hermann was told the 1948 Packard was taken to a holding lot until a truck going in the appropriate direction came by. With the truck's ground position satellite capability Hermann was assured he could be kept up-to-date on the location of his Packard

That was the plan. It would have worked if only the driver had done what he was supposed to.

The trucking company apparently thought the Packard was on its way toward Virginia and kept Hermann informed of the progress of the truck. When the truck got to Virginia and kept on going without stopping, an anxious Hermann spent days on the telephone trying to locate his Packard.

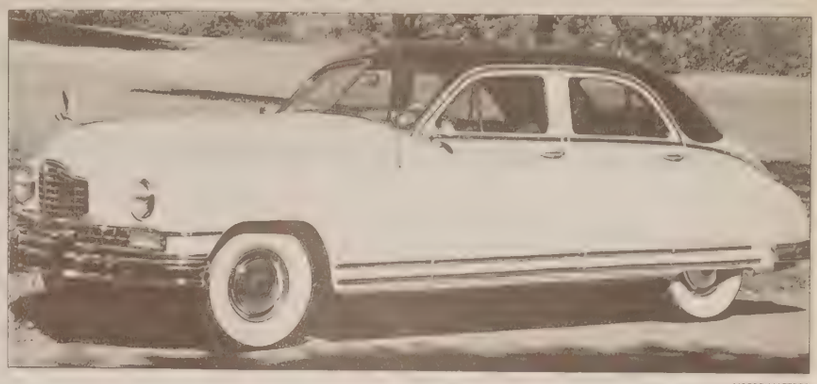

Days passed before Hermann was informed that the driver had thought the Packard was too big for his truck, so he hadn't picked it up. Regretfully, the driver didn't tell anyone of his decision to leave it in the holding lot.

Hermann found a second trucking company to haul his Packard. When the 17-foot, 8 5/8-inch-long Packard finally arrived, its battery was dead.

Hermann, anticipating such a happenstance, had an appropriate battery ready. With it, he was able to start and drive his 4,175-pound Packard. "It ran beautifully and only needed points and a coil," Hermann reports.

From headlight to taillight, the side panels are smooth. The traditional cormorant hood ornament towers over the special front bumpers. In addition, the same eggcrate grille motif is carried over into a faux grille on the rear of the car below the trunk lid, incorporating the taillights into the design.

Under the hood, which opens from either side, is a two-barrel, dual downdraft Carter carburetor on top of the big engine. "This engine is the ultimate refinement of the big straight eight," Hermann explains. It has an automatic choke.

MOTOR MATTERS

OWNER OF THIS 1948 Packard bought it on faith and didn't have to restore anything. "I just drive it," he says.

The 160-horsepower engine provides "Safety Sprint Acceleration." With the overdrive engaged, the engine speed is reduced by 27.8 percent.

The owner's manual boasts of "Flite-Glo" instruments and "Comfort-Aire" ventilation, along with "Tru-Course" steering. The dashboard houses the AM radio with four vertical push buttons.

Across the face of the dashboard, in what appears to be a continuous strip of chrome, are disguised buttons to activate the lighter, headlights, instrument lights, map light, fog light and heater fan. Ankle-level vents are operated by knobs under each end of the dashboard.

One feature offered only by Packard was the "Ventalarm." The owner's manual instructed the driver: "Tell the attendant to fill it up until the whistle stops." Only Packard had a whistling warning in the 20-gallon tank.

The 20-quart cooling system worked by air drawn through the radiator by the five-blade, 18 1/2-inch fan.

Other literature boasts that "Packard achieves a rare blending of great roominess, lavish appointments and an unbelievable ease of control." Hermann subscribes to Packard's claims

"I bought it already done," he says. "I just drive it." The farthest he has driven it is 300 miles in June to a national Packard meeting in Canandaigua, N.Y. The car performed flawlessly.

Brake squeal is not unusual after a rainfall

MOTOR MATTERS

JUNIOR DAMATO
Ask the Auto Doctor

Q We purchased a 2000 Buick Century in October 2000. As soon as we had rainy weather I noticed my brakes would grind for the first mile or so.

The dealer replaced the brakes. The replacement brakes make the same noise.

Now the dealer says this situation is normal. I did not pay all this money for a car with noisy brakes.

What can I do? — Peggy

A There is nothing wrong with your braking system. This is a normal sound from brakes in a lot of cars and trucks on damp mornings when vehicles are left outside.

The noise comes from a light rust buildup on the metal rotors and the brake pads rubbing against them when the brakes are applied.

After a few brake applications the rust is gone and so is the noise

Q I own a 1998 Isuzu Rodeo V6 with an intermittent rough idle and an illuminated "check engine" light. The local shop mechanic said at 30,000 miles the SUV needed a tune-up, so I agreed, but I still have the same problem.

The mechanic suggested I go to the dealer. I am hesitant to go there for the fear of a big bill. Can you help? — Scott

A I get this complaint on a regular basis. The first Rodeo that we checked took a little time to find the problem. (Same complaint as with your Rodeo).

Alldata database lists the exact problem and technical service bulletin #SB00-01-S005 (issued April 2000).

The problem is the lower intake manifold gaskets break apart and cause a vacuum leak, causing the rough idle and possibly setting a couple of trouble codes.

When the shop does the job, there is no reason to separate the upper and lower sections for removal.

Q I own a 1995 Nissan Maxima. After adding fuel injection cleaner, the "check engine" light came on.

My mechanic cleaned the oxygen sensor and knock sensor, which solved the problem. He said the fuel injection cleaner clogged the oxygen sensor and recommended only one brand of fuel additive.

Also, the engine stalls out after it is started in the morning. It usually requires three attempts to get the engine running. What do you think? — Chris

A In reference to the cleaning of the oxygen sensor and knock sensor, there is no cleaner to clean the 02 sensor.

The knock sensor is screwed into the engine block and requires no cleaning.

I have never heard of any fuel injector cleaner that would clog the oxygen sensor.

Find another technician to do an engine performance test and get a base line reading on what the engine management system is doing.

Q How do car companies rate torque and horsepower? I am confused.

Some small four-cylinder engines have 200-plus horsepower and yet the torque rating seems low.

What is the most important figure when trying to figure out the difference? — Stan

A It takes horsepower to make torque. The more torque an engine can produce, the more horsepower it will have.

Take a big truck, for example; its engine has a lot of torque to pull heavy loads. The trick: all the power is at low engine speed (rpm).

Take the Honda 2000 sports car: The small engine needs to operate at a very high engine speed to get the horsepower and advertised torque rating.

The larger the engine size, the more power it will produce. Some of the small four- and six-cylinder engines have turbochargers that greatly increase power.

Another factor is the multi-valve engine and variable valve timing which will also increase both torque and horsepower

Contra Costa Newspapers/ Hills Newspapers
In cooperation with animal rescue groups, advises advertisers to always ask an adoption fee for animals. Giving away pets for "Free" can put them in danger. "Free" pets can easily end up being abused. No amount of screening can prevent this. Also, it is a good idea, when possible, to obtain the new owner's full name, full address & phone number. For more information, contact Tony LaRussa's Animal Rescue Foundation at 925-256-1ARF or your local pet adoption agency See Today's Home & Business Service for Pet Services Advertising

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE FOR NURSES
Marilyn Chow RN, DNSc, FAAN
Vice President of Patient Care Services including Nursing
KAISER PERMANENTE
Last year, Kaiser Permanente introduced "Nursing Pathways," a program headed by Marilyn Chow and aimed at building a work culture that embraces and supports the input and opinions of our nurses.
Today, Nursing Pathways demonstrates Kaiser Permanente's commitment to attaining one of the best nurse-to-patient ratios in our field. By offering competitive wages, a broad range of career paths, continuing education programs, long distance programs for higher nursing degrees and a dedication to providing a safer workplace environment, we're preparing tomorrow's nurse leaders.
Over 200 of your colleagues in Northern California have recently chosen to join us in response to Nursing Pathways. Take part in our vision.

Potatoes make any vegetarian meal hearty, appetizing

BY J.M. HIRSCH
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CONCORD, N.H. — No matter how you slice, fry or mash them, potatoes provide vegetarians with an easy way to make any meal a hearty one.

Despite a history of bad publicity (in the 17th century they were believed to transmit leprosy, and in the 19th century were linked to a famine in Ireland), potatoes have become the second-most consumed food in the United States.

With good reason.

Potatoes can turn something as simple as steamed vegetables into a real meal. Toss them on a baked potato, add melted cheese or a few scoops of salsa and there's a dish even veggie-phobic children will tuck into.

Potatoes also are a great way for vegetarians to survive on the road. Even the most meat-heavy menu is likely to offer baked potatoes. Just ask the chef to add some vegetables and pasta sauce.

There's always the ever-popular french fry, too. When ordering out, vegetarians need to ask what the potatoes are fried in. Though many restaurants have switched to vegetable-based oils in recent years, some continue to use animal fat.

Either way, french fries are still loaded with fat and calories. To lower both, make them at home. It's easy. Slice the potatoes into thin rounds, then bake on a lightly oiled baking sheet for about 25 minutes in a 375 F oven, or until crisp.

As for mashed potatoes (called smashed by some), there is no way around the fact that they taste best when whipped with gobs of butter and a bit of cream.

But for those who don't do dairy, there are a few tricks for replicating that creamy taste. First, add a bit of vanilla rice or soy milk when mashing. The amount to add will vary according to the consistency you want, so start with just a few tablespoons.

For a richer flavor, with a tasty hint of cheese, add a few tablespoons of nutritional yeast flakes. Soy Parmesan cheese is another good choice for seasoning.

To provide a bit of zip, add a teaspoon or two of wasabi powder, the green horseradish-like condiment that is served with sushi. Go easy, as it packs a lot of punch.

For another tasty potato dish, try Mediterranean potatoes with olives, herbs and tomatoes from Amanda Grant's "Fresh and Fast Vegan Pleasures" (Marlowe & Company, 2002, $14.95).

Those who eat cheese can try this dish topped with melted mozzarella. Add grated cheese to the top of the dish during the final five minutes of baking.

MEDITERRANEAN POTATOES WITH OLIVES, HERBS AND TOMATOES

2 pounds waxy potatoes (4 or 5 large potatoes)
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 Spanish onion, finely sliced
1 cup sun-dried tomatoes, cut into thin strips
1 clove garlic, chopped
Salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste
1 cup mixed black and green olives, pitted
15 fluid ounces vegetable stock
Handful fresh flat-leaf parsley, roughly chopped

Preheat the oven to 375 degrees F.

Bring a large saucepan of water to a boil.

Add the potatoes and simmer for 10 minutes, until they are partly cooked.

They should still be firm when pierced with a knife.

Drain and set aside to cool.

Heat the oil in a frying pan and saute the onion and sun-dried tomatoes over a medium flame for about 5 minutes, or until the onions are soft.

Peel and thinly slice the potatoes.

Oil a medium casserole dish.

Arrange a layer of potatoes on the bottom and season with garlic, salt and pepper.

Scatter some of the onion and tomato mixture and olives over the potatoes.

Add another layer of potatoes and toppings, and repeat until everything is used.

End with a layer of potatoes.

Bring the stock to a boil and pour it over the potatoes.

Bake in the oven for 30 to 40 minutes, or until the potatoes are cooked and crispy.

To serve, scatter parsley on top.

Preparation 15 minutes. Cooking time 56 minutes.

Makes 4 servings.

Mediterranean potatoes with olives, herbs and tomatoes is taken from Amanda Grant's "Fresh and Fast Vegan Pleasures," Marlowe & Company, 2002, $14.95.

Tidbits for Cooks

BY LIZ ATWOOD
THE BALTIMORE SUN

Here's an easy spring dessert idea from Pillsbury:

Unfold 2 packages of softened Pillsbury Refrigerated Pie Crusts.

Cut 5 round pieces from each crust.

Fit pieces over backs of ungreased muffin cups.

Prick pastry with a fork and bake at 450 degrees until light golden-brown.

Cool completely.

Remove from muffin cups.

In a large bowl, combine 10 cups of fresh fruit and two 16-ounce jars of strawberry glaze.

Refrigerate mixture until chilled.

Just before serving, spoon 1/2 cup fruit into each cooled tart shell.

Top with whipped topping. Makes 20.

Some heart-healthy reasons to love pecans

NEWS USA

There is tasteful news just in time to celebrate this year's bountiful harvest of pecans. Pecans are good for you — especially when it comes to lowering cholesterol levels.

Adding just a handful of pecans to a traditional low-fat, cholesterol-lowering diet can have a dramatic impact on the diet's effectiveness, according to a research study conducted at Loma Linda University and published in late 2001 in the Journal of Nutrition.

The Loma Linda researchers, led by Dr. Joan Sabat and Dr. Sujatha Rajaram, found that a pecan-enriched diet lowered study participants' total and bad cholesterol twice as much as when they ate a traditional American Heart Association Step I diet.

Researchers also found that adding pecans to the diet lowered blood triglyceride levels and helped maintain — and even raise — levels of "good" cholesterol.

Eating a handful of pecans also will provide you with nutrients such as vital min E, folic acid, calcium, magnesium, phosphorus and several B vitamins.

Pecans are naturally cholesterol-free and sodium-free, and one serving provides about 10 percent of the daily value for zinc and fiber.

Pecans also are a good source of protein and plant sterols, which have recently been touted for their cholesterol-lowering ability.

Preparing a variety of foods with pecans is a cinch. There are countless ways to incorporate pecans into just about any meal or snack.

And to prove it, the National Pecan Shellers Association recently held a contest seeking the nuttiest and tastiest non-dessert and non-candy recipes around.

The first place winner in the "Kids Cook" category was this recipe submitted by six-year-old Dakota McDaniels from Colfax, Ill.

NUTTY PECAN CHICKEN TEPEES

3 ounces cream cheese
3 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup chopped pecans
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
1 8-ounce can cooked chicken
3 cans refrigerated crescent roll dough
18 thin pretzel sticks for garnish

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F.

In a small saucepan, melt cream cheese and butter over low heat, stirring constantly until smooth.

Add pecans, onion and chicken.

Mix well. Remove from heat.

Divide crescent rolls into six squares. (Two triangles with their seams pressed together make one square.)

Place a heaping spoonful of the chicken mixture into the middle of each square.

Fold corners in an upward motion toward the middle and seal so they form a point (like a tepee).

Place on ungreased cookie sheet and bake at 350 F for 20 minutes or until brown.

After removing the tepees from the oven, garnish each with 3 pretzel sticks placed vertically in the center to form the tepee frame.

Serves 6.

Eggs and fresh veggies make easy summer meals

NEWS USA

Fresh produce is popping up all over in home gardens and at supermarkets and farmstands. From asparagus to zucchini, the variety of vegetables available makes it easy to have the three to five servings a day that are recommended.

For satisfying yet very simple summer meals, combine your choice of fresh veggies with convenient eggs, a grain food and a dairy product to get all the food groups in a single dish.

Pizza Pronto does just that. Ready-made focaccia bread serves as a base for easy-to-prepare eggs, scrambled with traditional vegetable pizza toppings and sprinkled with cheese.

If you'd rather, you can substitute English muffins or flat pita rounds with chopped spinach or broccoli flowerets. Feel free to adapt the recipe to your own tastes or to what you have on hand.

Whichever veggies you choose, saute them lightly so you don't cook the flavor, color, texture and vitamins out of them. Once the veggies are cooked, with quick-cooking eggs, it'll take you only a few minutes to finish off a hearty, nutritious meal.

At harvest time, with eggs on hand, you can bring garden goodness to the table pronto.

PIZZA PRONTO

1/2 cup canned pizza sauce
2 (6-inch) Italian bread shells (focaccia)
Cooking spray
1/2 cup sliced mushrooms
1/2 cup diced sweet red or green pepper
1/4 cup chopped onion
4 eggs
1/2 teaspoon Italian seasoning, crushed
1/4 cup (1 oz.) shredded part-skim mozzarella cheese

Evenly spread 1/4 cup of the sauce on each bread shell. Place on baking sheet. Set aside.

Evenly coat 10-inch nonstick omelet pan or skillet with spray. Add mushrooms, pepper and onion.

Cover and cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until vegetables are crisp-tender, about 3 to 4 minutes.

Beat together eggs and seasoning until blended. Pour over vegetables.

As mixture begins to set, gently draw an inverted pancake turner completely across bottom and sides of pan, forming large, soft curds.

Continue until eggs are thickened and no visible liquid egg remains.

Do not stir constantly.

Spoon onto bread shells. Sprinkle each with 2 tablespoons of the cheese.

Bake in preheated 400 degrees F oven until cheese is melted, about 3 minutes.

Makes 4 servings

Small bites

Thoughts on filling those strawberry baskets

WATSONVILLE, Calif. — Don't waste a second of strawberry time. Keep these points in mind as you choose, store and eat your rosy fruit.

■ Strawberries do not ripen after they have been harvested, so choose strawberries that have been picked fully ripened.

■ The size of the berry, large or small, does not reflect quality or flavor; serving berries at room temperature does heighten naturally sweet flavor.

■ When you are shopping for strawberries, look for plump berries with a natural shine, bright-red color and fresh, green caps.

■ Once you get strawberries home, to maintain good flavor, appearance and highest nutritional value, store them loosely covered and unwashed in the refrigerator until you are ready to serve them.

■ Prepare strawberries for serving by rinsing with caps still attached under a gentle spray of cool water; pat dry with a paper towel. (Don't remove the caps before washing; the caps keep the water from breaking down the texture and flavor inside the berries.)

■ To freeze fresh strawberries: In a saucepan mix equal amounts of sugar and water. Stir over medium heat until sugar is dissolved and mixture is clear. Cool the mixture completely.

Measure 1 cup of stemmed and sliced strawberries into a 1-pint freezer bag. Pour ½ to 2/3 of a cup of the sugar-water liquid into the bag. Seal and freeze the bag in a single layer.

Tips for spring cleaning the kitchen

OLEAN, N.Y. — When sunshine beckons you outside, remember there's still some reason to give a little time to spring cleaning the kitchen.

When April showers blow along, everyone may well end up hanging out in the kitchen — and if it's clean and organized it will be that much easier to cook up a tasty dish to keep the troops happy till the clouds pass by.

■ Make sure all your knives are sharp; sharpen any that have lost their edge. Sharp knives cut more easily, of course, but they are also much safer.

■ Check to see a full range of necessary cutlery and utensils is still in place; replace essentials, from pots, pans and lids for them to kitchen tools and accessories. Check appliance cords for possible cuts or fraying, and replace when necessary.

■ Hand-wash cutlery and appliances. Read cleaning instructions for everything: Remember not all kitchen products are dishwasher safe.

■ Check all expiration and "best used by" dates on items in the pantry, refrigerator and freezer. Throw out those past their prime.

■ Evaluate how your pantry and food areas are organized. Sort food by category (baking, sauces, pastas, breakfast foods, and so on) to make things easier to find and reach, and to know when items need restocking.

■ Organize drawers with plastic sectional organizers or small oblong boxes.

Make more room in drawers by grouping your most-used utensils in ceramic jars or other holders on countertops — this makes them faster to grab, too.

■ Store cutlery properly, knives in a wooden block on the counter or in trays that fit in a drawer or hang on a wall.

■ Help save accidents by checking for loose handles on pots and pans.

■ Roll out new shelf linings in pantry and cabinets as you check each of them out.

■ Start an herb garden on your windowsill. It will add color and fragrance, as well as giving you fresh flavorings at your fingertips for months to come.

Baked Alfredo Macaroni

SEATTLE TIMES

BAKED ALFREDO MACARONI

2 cups elbow macaroni
¾ cup pasta cooking water
1 tablespoon olive oil
½ cup finely chopped red bell pepper
½ cup finely chopped onion
1 bottle (16-ounces) sun-dried tomato alfredo sauce (see note)
¾ teaspoon ground black pepper
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dried Italian herbs
¼ cup chopped parsley
½ cup fresh bread crumbs
1 tablespoon butter, melted
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

■ Bring a large pot of water to a boil. Add the macaroni and cook according to package directions. Reserve ¾ cup cooking water and drain the pasta. Pour pasta back into the pan.

■ Heat the olive oil in a 9-inch skillet on medium heat. Saute the vegetables until softened, about 5 minutes. Add to the macaroni along with the alfredo sauce, pepper, salt, Italian herbs and parsley.

Add enough of the pasta cooking water to loosen the mixture, making it very moist. Transfer to a 9-by-13-inch baking dish.

■ Combine the bread crumbs, melted butter and Parmesan cheese. Sprinkle over the top of the casserole.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree about 25 minutes, just until the topping begins to turn golden. L minutes before serving.

4 to 6 servings. Note: We use Classico brand in this recipe, but an tied alfredo sauce can be used.

Tips For You On Barbecue!

Can Backyard Barbecue Ever Rival The Pros? (The National Winner Tells How To Get Close)

By Jay Lloyd, Pacific Great Western NewsService

What is it about Summer that makes us all want to fire up the old grill? I mean, seriously, with the temperature consistently living in the 100-degree range, wouldn't making ice cream be more sensible? Is there some logic to stepping into the triple-digit heat of the backyard and then lighting up some charcoal in a confined space, thus running the temperature up another 300-degrees? I mean, really!

Well, whatever the logic, we all do it. And, according to one expert, we all do it wrong, wrong, wrong. For openers, we cook everything too hot and too fast. Secondly, we baste the raw meat with sauce and then throw it on the grill, insuring that highly-desirable, charcoal-encrusted piece of meat that we try to convince ourselves tastes so-o-o-o great just because WE COOKED IT!

The approaching Labor Day signals the traditional end to Summer. And, in an attempt to salvage this year's "BBQ-Season" we journeyed north a short distance to Roseville to the home of a four-time national barbecue winner in search of some solid tips for success.

Steve Troike is the owner and "barbecue guru" at Back Forty Texas BBQ. He generously shared a lot of time and many good secrets that should make your last backyard barbecue of the millennium a...pardon the phrase...smokin' success!

Q. Let's start with the basics, the equipment and the meat. What do you advise?

A. Well, as for equipment, it doesn't much matter whether you have a simple hibachi with charcoals or a fancy gas-powered unit, the objective is the same, namely to heat the meat SLOWLY at a low temperature. To do that you obviously have to have a lidded barbecue unit to capture and retain the heat.

Q. But how do you control the heat of charcoal briquettes?

A. By arranging them. You can actually arrange them like a "checkerboard" with spaces between them to control the heat level. Ideally, you need a unit to cook on, and a separate place to start the charcoal. You need several stacks of charcoals, started at various intervals, to supply the cooking grill for several hours to allow for slow-cooking. Doing it all in one unit, stacking charcoals on one side and cooking on the other, won't work. The heat from the charcoal stacks will raise the heat inside the unit and prohibit "low-heat" cooking.

Q. What about the meat? Why don't my ribs turn out like your ribs?

A. Part of it is that cooking process. While the backyard barbecuer has a challenge getting the heat just right, our restaurant has custom-made, sealed pits where the meats cook in a carefully-controlled environment of about 240-degrees. But it's the same principle: controlled heat in an enclosed area. The other reason your ribs turn out differently is the quality of meat; commercial establishments simply get a better grade of meat.

Q. So what should we look for?

A. Look for that "marbling" effect that your grandmother probably told you about. Since barbecuing is cooking in a dry heat environment, you need some moisture. One way to get it is to have the fat content melt to create juices. Another is to use a good seasoning rub on the meat.

Q. A seasoning rub? What's that all about?

A. Remember the days before refrigeration? How did they preserve meat? With salt. And why does salt work? Because it draws moisture toward the surface of the meat, and, ultimately out. The action of the rub and the natural "marbling" of the meat creates the moisture combination necessary to keep the meat from drying out. Remember, the key is LOW HEAT, LONG COOKING...several hours.. ENCLOSED SPACE.

Q. Does that really work?

A. It's not as effective as a real smoker-process, but it can add flavor. In asking that question, you've hit on a key difference between backyarders and commercial barbecuers: the heat source. Our pits, for instance, cook only with the heat and smoke generated by oak logs; the meat never touches any flames or flare-ups that char the meat. They rotate on a sort of 'ferris wheel' so they constantly baste each other. This kind of a system is just not practical for backyard barbecuing. In fact, using wood is not very practical; it takes too long to get hot, which is why charcoal is a better choice. But it's also the reason why the cooking-process is different. Instead of "low and slow" it's "hot and quick".

Q. So, what you're saying is we can never match commercial barbecue with backyard barbecues?

A. I'm afraid that's true. But now you know the reasons why and the steps you can take to, at least, get close. Just remember the "Three Ls"...LOW, LONG, LIDDED...and you won't have to gnaw on a chunk of charcoal-encrusted steak and pretend it's good just because you cooked it.

Geez... thanks. I think.

Tall, white cake perfect for any special occasion

UNIVERSAL PRESS SYNDICATE

Spring Fling excerpted from "Mary Engelbreit's Sweet Treats Dessert Cookbook"

A three-layer-tall white cake is perfect for almost any special occasion. This one serves a lot of people, so bring it out for a party!

For an extra touch, garnish each serving with fresh raspberries or strawberries or drizzle a little Raspberry Sauce around each slice.

If you prefer, you can substitute Seven-Minute Icing for the buttercream frosting, but if so, serve the cake within several hours of frosting it.

Using a standing electric mixer makes smooth work of this recipe.

FANCY WHITE LAYER CAKE

2 1/2 cups cake flour (not self-rising)
1 tablespoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup (1 1/2 sticks) unsalted butter, at room temperature
1 3/4 cups granulated sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1 cup milk
6 large egg whites, at room temperature

RICH BUTTERCREAM FROSTING

14 tablespoons (1 3/4 sticks) unsalted butter, at room temperature
4 1/2 cups confectioners' sugar
About 1/2 cup heavy cream
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract

■ Make the white cake. Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour three 9-inch round cake pans.

■ Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt into a large bowl and set aside.

■ In another large bowl, beat the butter and granulated sugar with an electric mixer until light and fluffy. Beat in the vanilla.

On low speed, beat in the flour mixture in 3 additions, alternating with the milk in 2 additions.

■ In another large bowl, using clean beaters, beat the egg whites on low speed just until frothy. Increase the speed to high and beat just until stiff peaks form.

■ Using a large rubber spatula, fold about 1/4 of the whites into the batter. Fold in the remaining whites in 2 or 3 additions, until just combined.

Pour the batter into the prepared pans and smooth the tops.

■ Bake the layers for 23 to 25 minutes, until a toothpick inserted into the center comes out clean. Let cool in the pans on wire racks for 10 minutes.

Remove the layers from the pans, set right side up on the racks and let cool completely.

■ Make the rich buttercream frosting. In a large bowl, beat the butter with an electric mixer until light and fluffy.

On low speed, beat in the confectioners' sugar, 7 tablespoons of the cream and the vanilla. Increase the speed to high and beat until light and fluffy. If necessary, add another 1 to 2 tablespoons cream.

■ Place one of the cake layers on a serving plate. Reserve 1 cup of the frosting for decorating the top of the cake.

Spread a thin layer of the remaining frosting over the top of the cake layer.

Place the second layer on the top and spread with a thin layer of frosting.

Place the third layer on top and frost the top and side of the cake.

■ Transfer the reserved frosting to a pastry bag fitted with a medium star tip and pipe several large rosettes onto the top of the cake.

Serves 12 to 14.

RASPBERRY SAUCE

1/2 cup sugar
1/3 cup water
2 cups fresh, or thawed frozen, raspberries
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice or Chambord (black raspberry liqueur)

■ In a small saucepan, bring the sugar and water to a boil over medium high heat. Stir the mixture until the sugar dissolves, about 5 minutes. Add the raspberries and cook for 2 minutes, stirring.

■ Transfer the mixture to a food processor or blender and process until pureed.

■ Pour the raspberry sauce through a strainer set over a medium bowl, pressing on the solids with the back of a wooden spoon to extract all the liquid; discard the solids. Stir in the lemon juice. Let the sauce cool completely before using.

It will keep for 3 days in the refrigerator or freeze for longer storage.

Makes about 2 cups.

This vibrant sauce can also be used as a topping for ice cream or pound cake.

Because it freezes well for up to six months, it's a good way to preserve berries at the height of the season.

SEVEN-MINUTE ICING

2 1/4 cups sugar
3/8 teaspoon cream of tartar
3 large egg whites
7 1/2 tablespoons cold water
2 1/4 teaspoons light corn syrup
3/4 teaspoon vanilla extract

■ In a large deep, heat-proof bowl, combine the sugar, cream of tartar, egg whites, water and corn syrup, and beat with an electric mixer on low speed until well blended.

■ Set the bowl over a pot of simmering water (the bottom of the bowl should not touch the water) and beat on medium speed, scraping down the side of the bowl 2 or 3 times, for 3 minutes. Increase the speed to high and beat for 4 minutes, or until the icing is thick and shiny and forms soft peaks.

■ Remove the bowl from the heat and beat in the vanilla.

Beat for about 30 seconds longer, or until the icing again forms soft peaks.

Use immediately.

Coconut variation: After adding the vanilla, using a rubber spatula, fold 1/2 cup sweetened shredded coconut into the frosting.

Makes about 5 cups.

This classic fluffy, pure white cake frosting is made by cooking and beating egg whites and sugar.

The recipe makes enough icing to fill and frost a three-layer cake generously. The icing should be used as soon as it is made.
